Bethel board stymied by sewer fees

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Faced with the specter of the town's sewer system development charge driving businesses and jobs out of the village, perhaps out of town, the Bethel selectmen Monday night voted to have Town Manager Madeleine Henley explore the possibility of allowing hook-up fees to be paid over time, rather than in a single lump sum.

At issue was the proposed expansion of Cisco and Poncho's Mexican restaurant in the Mountain View Mall. Developer Carl Hansen, a co-owner of the mall, said the restaurant wished to expand into the area of the mall currently filled by three office spaces. The proposed expansion would add 30 seats to the restaurant, which currently seats 65, Hansen said.

The only thing holding up the expansion, he said, is the sewer fee charged for expansion of an existing use—to add the 30 seats would require paying a fee of nearly $10,000.

"There's just no way we can afford to pay that kind of money," said Hansen, who described the mall development as a small scale, local undertaking that has survived despite being undercapitalized, and which has not turned a profit in the three years since start up.

Hansen said that unless the restaurant was allowed to expand, the owners, Mike and Marlene McArney, might be forced to move the business to another location, out of the village center.

Hansen noted that the businesses currently at the mall employ approximately 40 people, but three years ago, when he and his partners purchased the mall building, it was empty and unproductive.

In a letter to the selectmen, he wrote: "We were willing to take that

GRAMS AND GRAMPS GALORE—The Crescent Park School's Grandparents Day last week attracted a large crowd of grandmothers, grandfathers, "adopted" grandparents, aunts, uncles and special friends, who all turned out to see their favorite students at work and play. The school's fifth-grade risk because I knew that Bethel needed exactly what we were offering: affordable, modern, well exposed business locations."

But now, "we already are having a hard enough time just paying our sewer bill." If nothing can be done about the fee, he wrote, "I'm afraid we may just have to pack it in."

Hansen argued that the fee should be reduced because he would be offsetting the new usage by eliminating much of the present sewer use—by office workers and restaurant customers who now must wait to be seated. He also noted that when the building was initially renovated, one bathroom was disconnected.

Food service director tries to build choice in tough times

By WENDY HANSCOM

When new food service director Geoffrey Stilphen reported for work this fall, he faced a double challenge—beginning a new job and dealing with budget cuts.

Stilphen had been SAD #17's school nutrition program director for the past two years. He has an extensive background in the food industry and has also directed school lunch programs at Hebron Academy and Ransom-Everglades School in Florida. Here in SAD #44, Stilphen had to confront the budget constraints imposed last spring, but he's still managed to initiate some new programs.

At Telstar, for example, high and middle school students have a new salad bar. It features several lettuce toppings, including cottage cheese, cold-cuts, onions, radishes, carrots, celery, cheese, cucumbers, peanuts and a choice of dressings.

Last Wednesday was the opening day for the salad bar and Stilphen said the students seemed pleased with it.

Also in the works are plans for a new a la carte menu at Telstar. The plan may even give the food service budget a needed boost.

"An a la carte menu is not reimbursable from the state, but it gives the students the option of not taking hot lunch. It helps subsidize the hot lunch program," Stilphen said.

On the elementary school level, students are now able to choose between low-fat or whole milk, and on Fridays low-fat chocolate milk is offered.

Stilphen said he knows from experience that when chocolate milk is offered there is more participation in the hot lunch program. Friday participation has gone up, he said, and starting this week low-fat chocolate milk will be offered everyday for hot-lunch takers or pupils brown bagging it.

Changes may also be coming in the way hot-lunches are served to some students.

High school students at Telstar have been on the state mandated "offer versus serve" program for a number of years. The students can refuse foods they don't like. This program has a number of positive benefits according to Stilphen.

Primarily, he said, "it reduces waste. We don't have to prepare as much of an unpopular item that might be thrown away anyway and that saves on production time. One of the areas we have to look at is that we have cut personnel in the district and we have fewer people and fewer hours. We're trying to keep within a budget and keep our food quality up."

For now Telstar Middle School students are still served everything on the menu, but Stilphen said he plans to ask for approval from the school

Rebel runners hit the trail

Telstar High School's 1991 cross-country team is off and running. Coach John Applin said this year's turnout wasn't a large one, but he's got some strong competitors.

Last year the boys' team finished last in the Mountain Valley Class C Conference and the girls' fifth. He said the girls' finish seems low, but there were only a few points making the difference between third, fourth and fifth places in the league.

This year's team features some strong returning lettermen on both squads. Applin predicted that seniors Troy Wing and Victor Hart as well as junior Fred Burk should all have good seasons.

Applin also said that returning lettermen senior Solie Buchanan, junior Terri Applin and sophomore Jenn Bowie should run well.

Newcomers this year are senior Randy Kangas and freshmen Kevin Rosenberg, Peter Miserochchi and Amy Hart.

Applin said he has a handful of girls still coming out, "who will help us be a very improved team."

W.M. Alliance will fight lower overflights

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Western Maine Alliance has announced it will actively oppose a National Guard proposal to lower the floor for military training flights over much of western Maine.

The resolution to contest the lower flights was passed unanimously by the alliance's board of directors at a meeting in Bethel last Wednesday.

The rural advocacy group had initially remained neutral on the proposal, but had pushed for the military to provide more information about the flights and to accept more public input.

Now, however, the WMA plans to "urge the governor's office" and the Maine congressional delegation to "explore every avenue for wiping this proposal off the National Guard Board's agenda." The Maine congressional delegation is already on record against the proposal.

The resolution passed last week also calls for the WMA to "work with the military and the public to reduce violations and improve existing airspace management over western Maine."

The National Guard proposal, which came to light over the past summer, calls for lowering the operations floor in the Condon Military Operations Area from the current 7,000 feet to 300 feet. Condon M.O.A. covers a 200-plus

Gould begins 155th academic year

Associate Headmaster Dr. Harry "Dutch" Dresser delivered opening day remarks before the student body as Gould Academy began its 155th academic year last week. Urging students to be "provoked by their course work," he asked that they question the assumptions of educators and the media.

Dr. Dresser asked students to give close scrutiny to answers to questions such as, "because we've always done it that way," and "because that's what it says in the book," both comments he recounted overheard from teachers in another town some years ago.

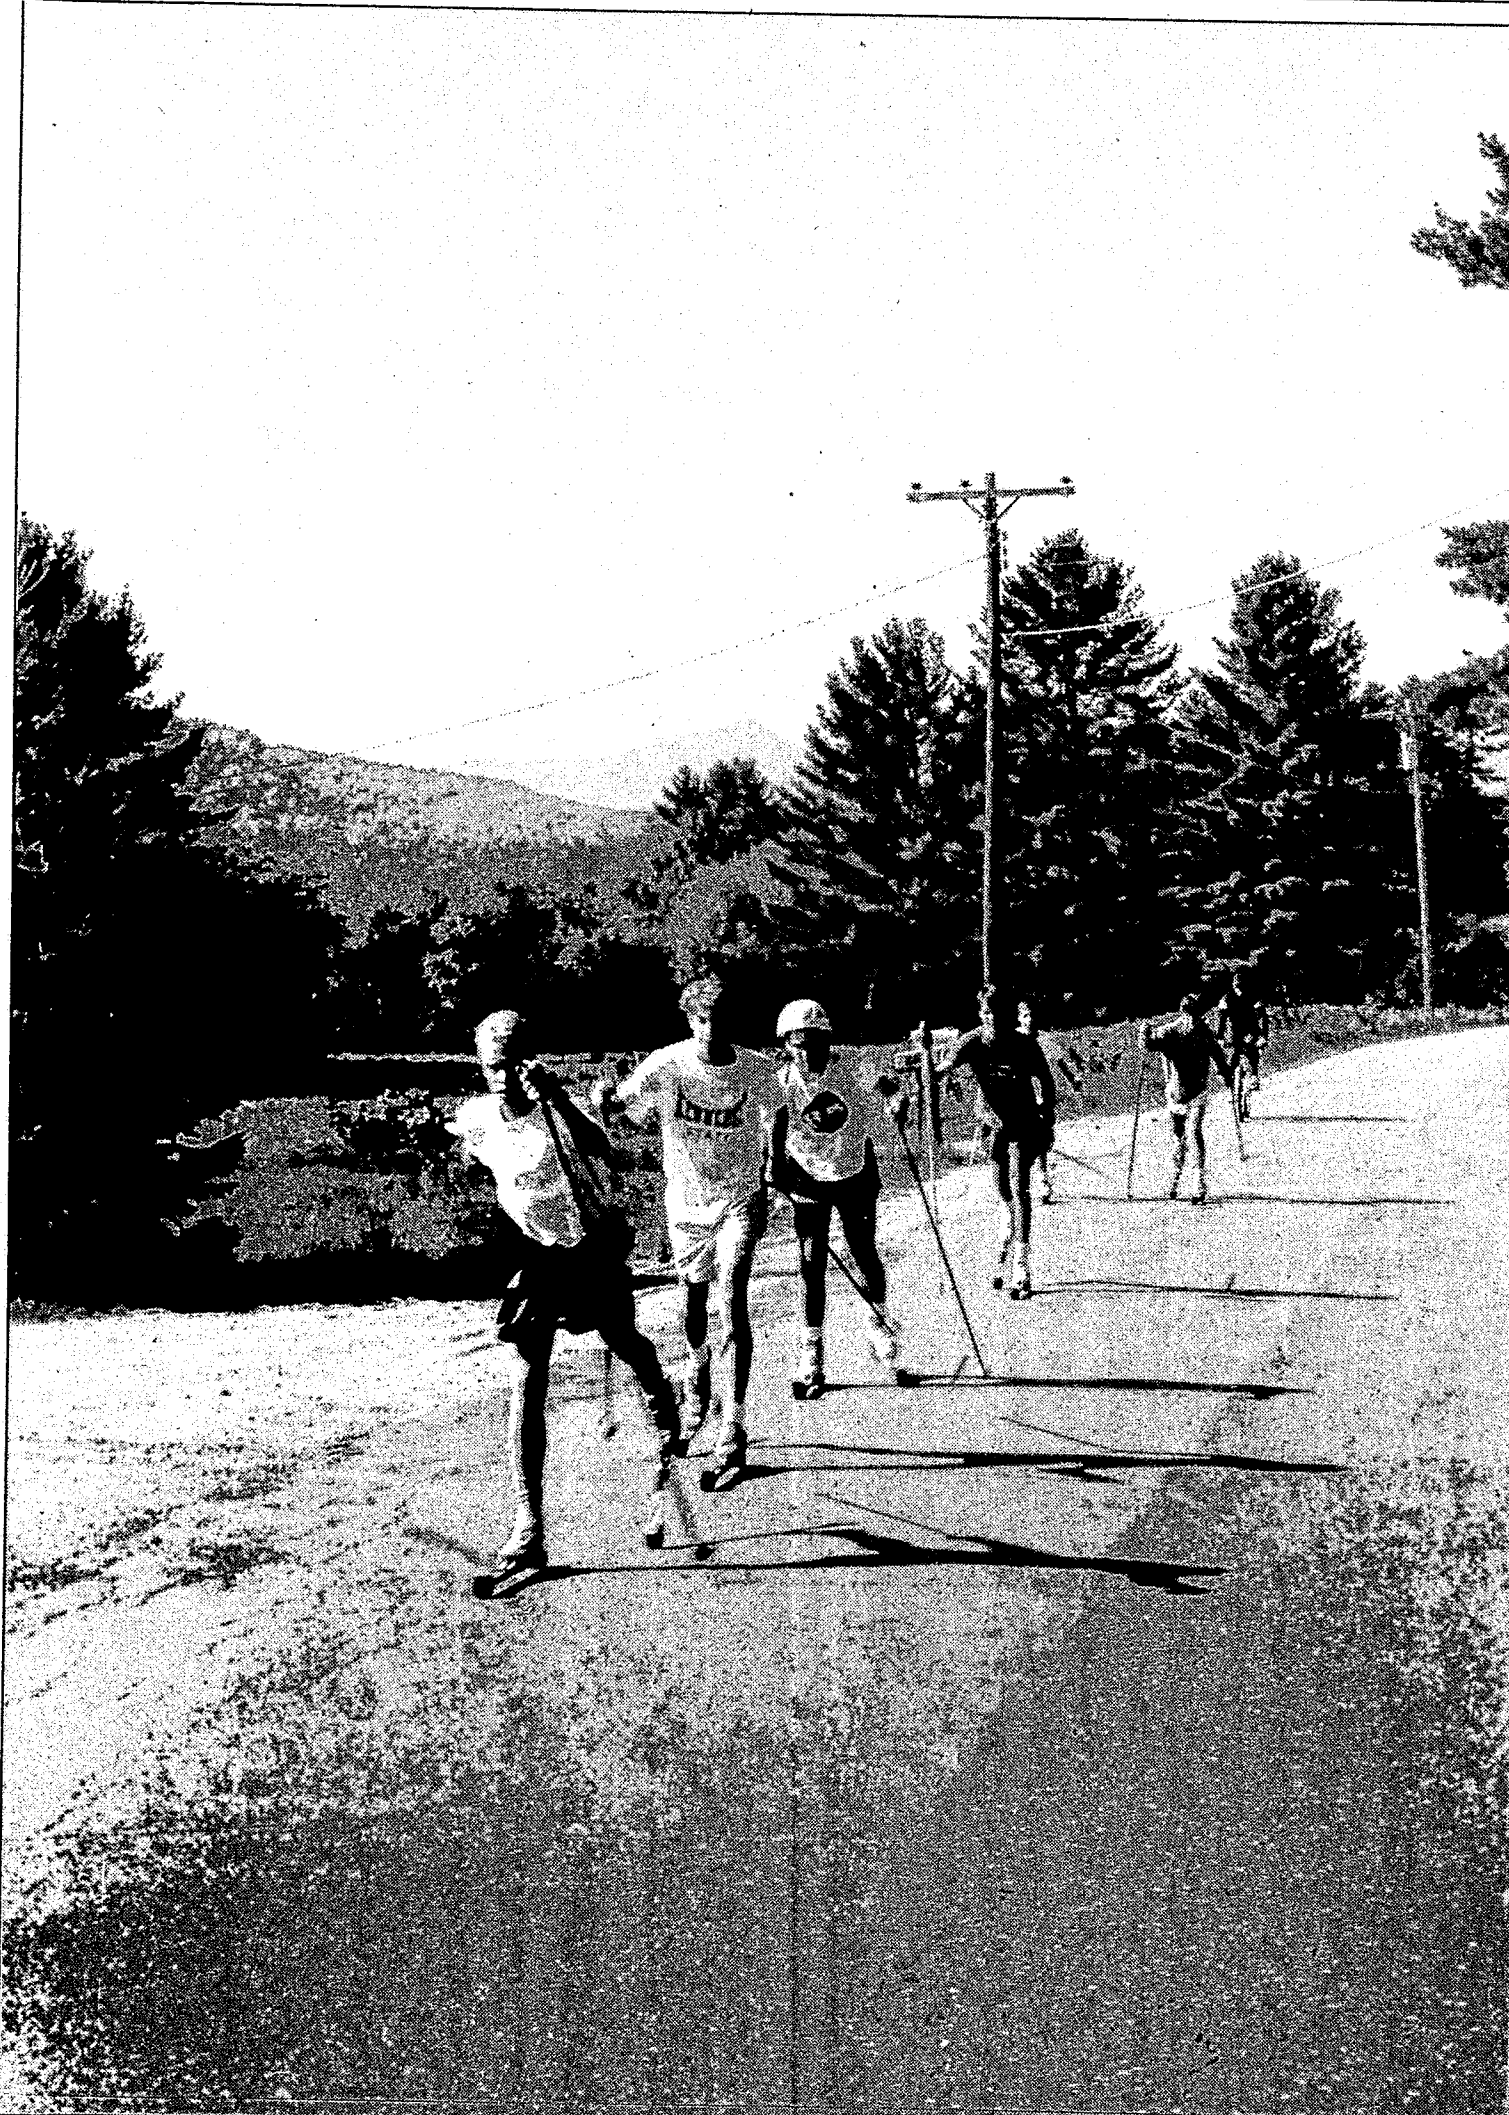

New students at Gould Academy include a junior who was home-schooled near Greenville and who is studying in a classroom for the first time; a girl from Cameroon, Africa whose father works for the Peace Corps, and others whose hometowns are as far flung as Alaska, Korea and France.

Maine again has the largest number of students, comprising nearly half of the student body.

All new students returned Sunday from a three-day orientation trip, outfitted by former math teacher Steve Chandler with the equipment purchased last winter through a special program with L.L. Bean of Freeport for Gould's winter and fall trips. Returning student leaders who helped organize and lead the trips were: Jay Walega, Susan Crandall, Amy Todd and Bryce Gasser of Bethel.

Bethel area students enrolling at Gould this year are: Kendra Hutchinson, Leah Bonnema, Marie Lowell, Matthew Thurston, Josh Otten, Meredith Otten, Nancy Morgan, Mike Rackliffe, Nate Wight and Luke Gray.

THINKING SNOW—Gould cross-country skiers stride along the Middle Intervale Road on roller skis with Mt. Spec in the background. Coach Dick Taylor rode herd on the team on a bicycle. The pre-season trainees are Jason Wolf, front, of Troy, N.H.; Paul Cote of Farmington; Dan Boyle of Hanover, N.H.; Guillaume de Romel of Newport, R.I.; Nels Barber of Anchorage, Alaska; Patrick Cote of Farmington and Coach Taylor.

Opinions

Our health care system needs radical, not cosmetic, surgery

With the real income of middle and working class Americans shrinking relentlessly, while health insurance costs (for both employers and employees) continue to shoot ever upward, it seems the political will might finally be building for a long overdue overhaul of the way health care in this country is financed.

The United States has long enjoyed the dubious distinction of being the only modern industrialized nation that is unwilling to extend basic health care coverage to all its citizens.

The very predictable result of this penny-wise, pound-foolish selfishness is that we all end up paying more and getting less. For example, preventative treatments and early detection procedures are deferred by the uninsured until disease and its attendant costs are out of control. And these costs are then shifted to the fortunate insured, who end up paying higher premiums in order to underwrite the hospitals' expense in providing care for the uninsured.

Both of Maine's U.S. senators discuss the problem in their columns (below) this week, and both columns are worth reading. But, as the graphic to the right shows, little real reform will be accomplished until we eliminate the crazy-quilt of overlapping insurance bureaucracies that are bleeding the health care delivery system of financial resources desperately needed for research, prevention and treatment.

Health care coverage, to be financially efficient and socially just, cannot continue to be based on an individual's employment (a joking that originally arose only to circumvent World War II wage and price controls). Rather, it must be funded from the broadest, most equitable base—such as corporate payroll taxes or income tax.

Taxes are, of course, a financial burden. But, as both major corporations and small businesses are increasingly acknowledging, reasonable taxes are far less of a burden than our current wasteful and unfair health insurance arrangement.

The present system of health care financing in this country does not need fine tuning or further bureaucratic elaboration—it needs to be thrown out and replaced.

Health care reform

This fall, Congress will have a busy legislative schedule concerning a range of issues affecting people in Maine and around the country. Health care will be at the top of the Senate agenda. Reform of the nation's health care system is critical for addressing the needs of middle income working families.

Over the last dozen or so years there has been a steady erosion of the economic standing of working families in America. Their wages have stagnated at the same time that their relative tax burdens have increased. Family budgets have been under particular strain during this recession.

We have seen this in Maine and across the nation. Living standards in our country have been static relative to most other industrialized nations. Today in the United States, parents can no longer be confident that their children will enjoy a higher standard of living with better jobs and a more secure retirement.

The basic responsibility of government is the security and well being of its citizens. We must address the pressing concerns of American families.

One of the primary issues facing Americans in the cost and availability of health care. In the months ahead, we will move forward on legislation Senate Democrats introduced in June to overhaul the nation's health care system.

The cost of health care is continuing to spiral out of control. Millions of American families do not have any health insurance; millions more are concerned that they will lose their health insurance or that it will become so expensive that they can no longer afford to maintain coverage. It has been estimated that over 130,000 people in Maine lack health insurance; of these, approximately 70,000 live in families with one or more persons in the workforce.

The United States spends a tremendous amount on health care. In 1990, our country spent $671 billion on health care, approximately 12.2 percent of the Gross National Product, up from 11.6 percent—$604 billion—in 1989. However, despite these expenditures and the nation's advances in medical treatment and technology, the United

Health costs go 'through the roof'

A numeral followed by nine zeros is a billion, a number much larger than most people can imagine. It's the kind of measure by which we chart the miles to distant galaxies or the number of stars in the universe.

Yet a billion also has a very down-to-earth application. Last year Americans spent $671 billion on health care.

Being frugal people, we in Maine find it difficult to relate to such massive numbers, but let me borrow an illustration from my Senate colleague Alan Simpson of Wyoming to help spell it out: A billion seconds ago, he said, it was 1955 and Dwight Eisenhower was campaigning for his second term as President. A billion minutes ago, Hannibal was crossing the Alps with his troops. A billion hours ago, the Earth was a cold, solid piece of rock.

And in the last 12 hours, a billion dollars is what the United States spent on health care.

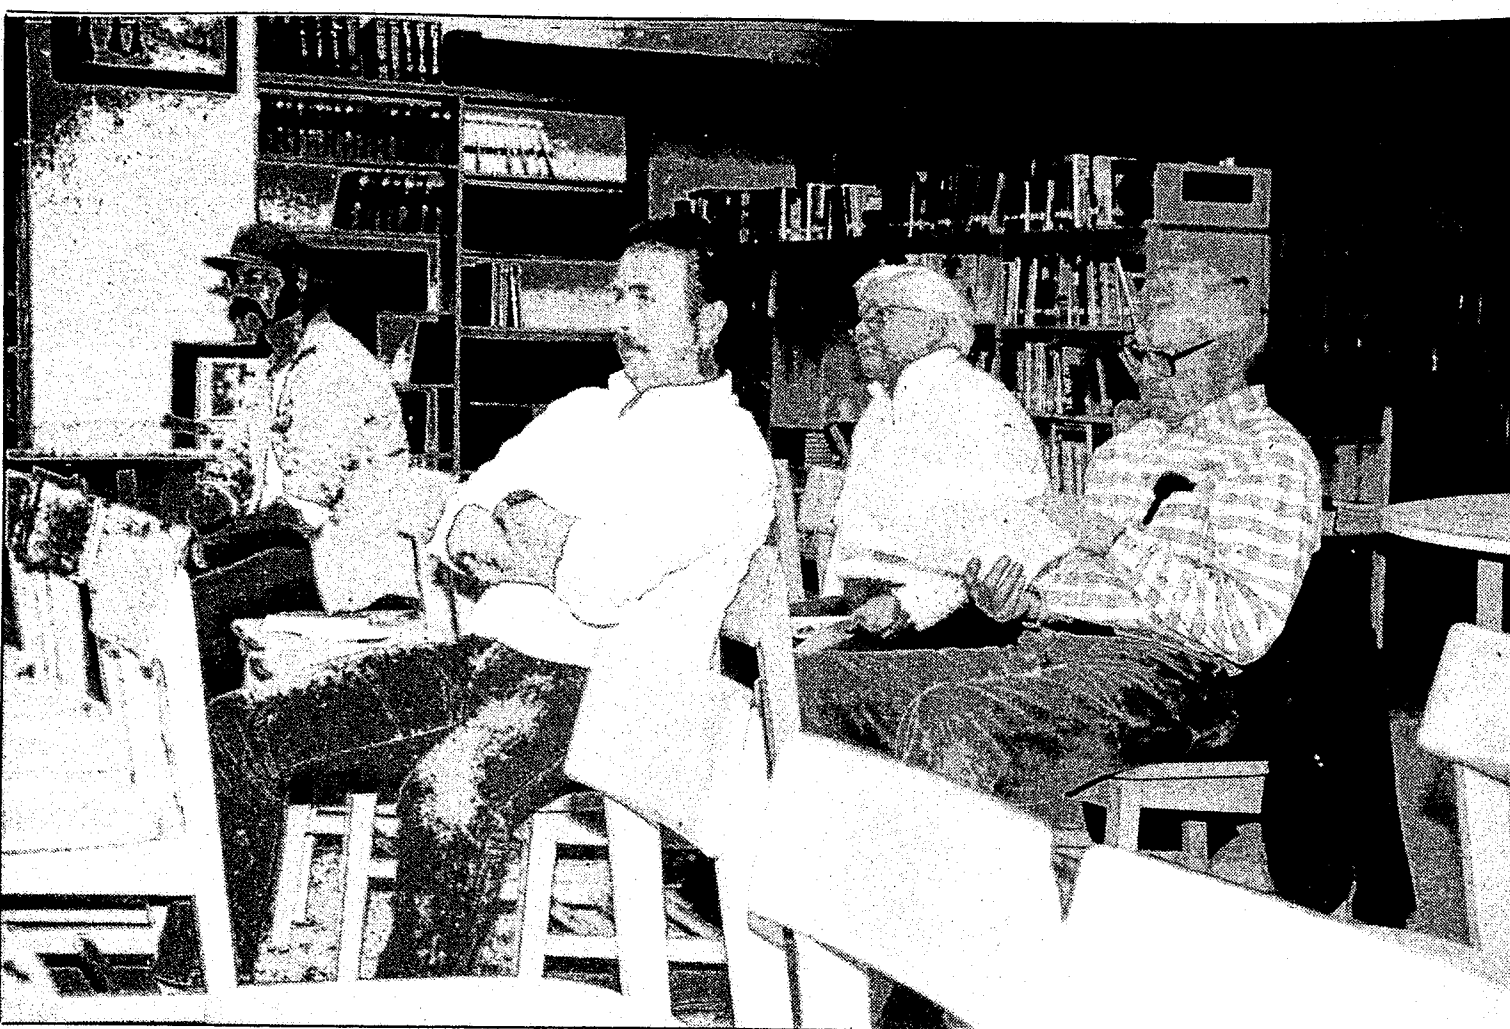

Ironically, however, that huge expenditure still did not cover health care for all the people. At a time when the United States is capable of providing the finest, most innovative and technologically advanced care in the world, more and more Americans are going without it because the price is too high.

As many as 37 million people—at least one in every eight—have no health insurance. They are not old enough for Medicare and not poor enough for Medicaid.

What's more, 80 percent of them work, but their employers cannot afford to provide them with adequate insurance, rising costs, shortfalls in payments to health care providers and government mandates have sent insurance premiums through the roof, virtually precluding small businesses from providing adequate coverage and preventing individuals of modest means from providing coverage of their own.

Those figures reinforce what most of us know all too well—the problems plaguing our health care system have reached critical proportions. Reform of the system has become not just a moral imperative, but a practical TOUGH DECISION—Terrance McGee, left, Tom Remington and Joan and Norman Putnam listened last week to the debate on referendum question number one on the November ballot. Only eight people attended out of the debate, which was sponsored by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce.

Letters to the editor

VOTE 'NO' ON ONE

To the Editor

I attended the referendum question #1 forum last Thursday evening and thought it a shame that only 10 Bethel area residents were concerned enough about this extremely important issue to attend. The speakers were well versed on their view points and each drove more than one-and-a-half hours to come to Bethel to address us. I was glad that at least reporters of The Bethel Citizen and the Lewiston Sun-Journal were present to get the facts. I facilitated the meeting as your chamber executive, but I write this letter as a citizen and a business person of Maine.

The arguments on both sides of the question were good ones and there is an emotional side of me that would lean toward voting yes on the referendum to halt the turnpike widening, but the good sense side of me will vote no. The future of business growth and survival is in our state's transportation system.

There has been a lot of press on either side of this issue.

The proponents of this bill claim that the "hungry bureaucrats" are behind the proposed turnpike widening, as the campaign is being partially funded by road construction firms from out of state.

The proponents also claim that their effort is a "grass roots" effort of environmental organizations in Maine.

I take exception to this, as among the listed supporters are the Maine Audubon Society and the Maine group of the Sierra Club and the NRCM.

These organizations are at least partially funded by out of state folks who know nothing about what makes the Maine economy tick or who have chosen to move to Maine from the city or suburban neighborhoods and have the attitude of "I was here first, now burn the bridge at Kittery."

Yes, all of us including the generational Maine folks and those of us who are newcomers want the great quality of life and quality of environment that Maine has. But, we also need economic health. One of the greatest encumbrances to that is our present transportation system. Improvements to it would be severely inhibited by this newly proposed transportation policy. I urge you to vote no on referendum question #1.

G'wood planners refuse permit for camp work

The Greenwood planning board declined Monday to issue board member Jim Cyr an after-the-fact permit for work he recently completed at the Indian Pond camp of Pat and Henry Steward.

Cyr, who said at last week's meeting that he was hired by the Stewards two days after the board approved the building permit for the camp, acknowledged Monday that he built the camp larger than allowed by the permit.

Under the terms of the town's new shoreline zoning ordinance, a nonconforming structure (a structure built before the current 100-foot setback restriction from great ponds) may be increased by thirty percent.

According to planning board chairman Wayne Hakala, Cyr exceeded that limit.

At Monday's meeting, which was also attended by selectman Marie Bartlett and the town's chief tax assessor, Herbert Dunham, Cyr said the Stewards camp now totals 1,247 square feet.

Based on the camp's original specifications, which totaled 851 square feet, Hakala said the maximum allowable square footage is 1,112.

Hakala instructed Cyr to bring his "very best measurement with all the ducks lined up in a row" to the board's next meeting Oct. 7. Hakala also suggested to board member Medford Barton, who lives near the camp, that he visit the site and make his own measurements.

Wanted: G'wood school director

Greenwood selectmen have been unable to fill the vacancy on the town's delegation to the SAD #44 school board.

"We're ready to send out an S.O.S.," Selectman Marie Bartlett said. "No one has shown any interest at all."

The vacancy was created when Ivan Roberts resigned last month. Nancy Dewing and Raymond Harrington are the town's other two school directors.

Bartlett said anyone interested in the position should contact the selectmen.

Community Conference II notes:

Community Conference II is off and running. On Wednesday evening, Sept. 11, 36 focus group facilitators and planners participated in a training and planning session led by Edie Seashore. And during the next six weeks these facilitators will be inviting others to join them in a discussion of several key questions related to the quality of life in Bethel and areas of strength and need for that particular focus group. Information gathered will be used in the planning of the large conference on Nov. 15.

Put that date on your calendar. Nov. 15, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., will be Community Conference II: Planning Our Future. The seminar will be facilitated by Edie Seashore and will use the focus group data to direct energy toward what we want our community to be and how to get there.

We hope many, many people will participate on Nov. 15. In the meantime, if one of the following focus groups is of particular interest to you and you have not been contacted, feel free to call the leader expressing your desire to become a group member. This involves one discussion meeting in the next few weeks. Each focus group will be composed of between eight and 15 people and will use a series of questions to guide their discussion.

Remember, the next meeting of the Bethel Area Task Force will be Sunday, Sept. 22, 7 p.m. at the Bingham House. The agenda will include a report from the recently held meeting of the NTL board. The conference planning committee meets Monday mornings at 7:30 p.m. at the Bingham House. New members are welcome to both meetings.

History of the conference

The Community Conference II: Planning For Our Future is one of a series of events held since 1986 to encourage citizens of the Bethel area to come together to reflect and plan for the future. This type of event might be described as a modern town meeting, where citizens come together to identify critical issues and actively plan for the future of a town or region.

In August 1986, the late Ron Lippitt, a founder of NTL, conducted, with members of his NTL lab, a future session for 35 local citizens on a Friday afternoon at Crescent Park School. Those attending, including municipal officials, planning board members and concerned citizens, found the experience to be so valuable that plans were begun for a larger more elaborate session.

The SAB # Adult and Community Education program and the Bethel/NTL Liaison Committee agreed to act as sponsors.

The Citizens Community Conference was held on Oct. 30, 1987, facilitated by Dr. Eva Schindler-Rainman, a colleague of Ron Lippitt and longtime NTL member.

The conference was attended by 105 people and was centered on the general theme of the impact of growth and development in the area. Nine task groups were formed around issues seen by attendees as of the highest priority. The groups used the day to set goals and identify action steps. The groups working on affordable housing, recycling, conservation, economic diversity, zoning, recreation, retail business, ordinances and food and clothing banks met at least once after the conference. A six-month follow-up was also held.

In the four years since the conference, there is much evidence of the accomplishments of several groups, including a recycling program, conservation commission, the Mahosuc Arts Council, and an affordable housing study. The process is often cited as a valuable example of creating a vehicle for citizen energy and initiative, as well as for the concrete results of the working groups.

The decision to hold Community Conference II was precipitated by the feeling that it was time for a new look, and by the news that NTL's board had decided to terminate Bethel operations, a decision which could have major economic and cultural implications for the area.

A local Task Force began meeting in the summer and agreed to sponsor the conference in hopes that it would provide an opportunity for the community to look at itself and to begin planning for the future. Edith Seashore volunteered to serve as facilitator, and a design was chosen which combines a series of focus groups with a day-long conference, to be held on Nov. 15.

Why focus groups? The focus groups, formed around many common interest groups in the area, will be a valuable way to identify many of the threads which make up the fabric of the community. The data gathered from the groups will be used in planning the themes for the day-long event.

Many businesses have found that a strategy of "diversity precedes integration," encouraging like groups to meet together prior to a unifying experience, is highly effective in the planning process.

What will the conference be about? The conference will be participatory and action-oriented. It will use a process of goal setting, using the data from focus groups and that contributed by attendees at the conference. The conference will guarantee results in the form of next steps; the establishment of working groups and the start of action plans to help citizens of the area move toward a bright future.

BYE, BYE, BREAD AND BUTTER—Kathie Schandelemeier of Newry is in the process of selling her Bread and Butter Bake Shop business to Thirza Herrick of Bethel. Herrick said the shop should reopen in about a month. In the meantime, she will be asking the Bethel planning board to approve some renovations. Herrick said she'd like to add display cases and change the shop's front window. She said the shop will remain a bakery with "to-go" service. She may also install a deli counter featuring meats and salads, she said.

Bethel police log—

On Saturday, Sept. 7 at 1:12 a.m. the Oxford County Sheriff's office requested that Bethel police stand-by as possible back-up at a reported fight at a Bryant Pond restaurant.

Bethel planners flip flop on town office renovations

The Bethel Planning Board has reversed an earlier decision and put off for two weeks its demand that the town submit an after-the-fact application for the town office renovation work.

The board will use the two weeks to study the town's site plan review ordinance to see it is applicable to the town office renovations.

The planners had initially ignored the work, but then—at the urging of abutting merchant Rick Whitney—determined that the town should have submitted an application for the project.

In late August the planning board voted to ask the town to submit an after-the-fact application for the project, but shortly after the vote it decided that the town selectmen should have been formally notified beforehand that the planning board was to take the matter up.

Accordingly, the issue was put back on the agenda for the board's meeting last week, and Town Clerk Merton Brown, representing the selectmen, argued that the internal changes to the town office building did not generate enough additional traffic to warrant a site plan review.

After listening to Brown's arguments, planning board voted to postpone making another decision on the question until the board has a chance to take another look at the site plan ordinance.

Planning assistant Stacy Benjamin had earlier told the board that attorneys for the Maine Municipal Association had advised her that the town must abide by its own ordinances and submit an application for the project, even though the work has long since been completed.

Food service board to offer middle school children a chance to refuse food they won't eat. Eventually, he said, he's like to see such choice made a district-wide policy.

Along with new services this year there have also been new budget related situations to deal with.

One problem began on the opening day of school, when hot lunches delivered to Crescent Park School portable classrooms were served cold.

The merger of Ethel Bisbee and Crescent Park schools has resulted in the housing of five classrooms in portables. Those students are served hot-lunch in the portables.

On first day of school, portable hot lunches were cold because they were delivered too early, Stiphen said. But during the past three weeks the process has been fine tuned and lunches packed at Telstar High School arrive 10-15 minutes before lunch-time, he said, and are still warm when served.

To keep them warm, the hot-lunches are packed in plastic foam containers and placed in insulated containers.

Stiphen said he must eventually eliminate the use of the plastic foam trays. The school board voted two years ago not to use any more plastic foam products. Stiphen is researching the cost of using hard plastic reusable insulated containers. The plastic foam trays used now are left over from before the policy change, he said.

In Andover, the kitchen staff was cut in half. Last year two food service workers prepared 60-65 hot lunches. One food service worker has been eliminated and now less food is prepared on site.

Stiphen said he has written this year's menu's so that the one Andover worker can cook some of the food on-site, such as hamburgers and fresh or frozen vegetables. Other foods, like chop suey, that require more preparation time are cooked at Telstar and warmed-up in Andover. So far this year, Andover's new system is working well, he said.

Stiphen said one of his goals for this year is to get students involved in the food service program. "I want to start meeting with student groups at all levels. I think they need to feel they have some say in menu planning. Sometimes they ask for things we can't offer, but that's my chance to sit down with them and explain why not." He said he would also like to get into student classrooms and talk about health and nutrition.

study traditional subjects including English, languages, history, math, art, science, etc. with an emphasis on environmental understanding. Students live in cabins and dormitories on the campus on the shores of the bay and share in the work of operating the physical plant, the kitchen and the school farm, which produces much of the food they eat.

Featured during the semester are field experiences by canoe and on foot along the Maine coast and inland to the school's facility on Umbagog Lake.

He said he's still looking for recruits. The girls' team has only three members that are running in competition now. There are a few more he's hoping will be ready to run soon, he said. "Once I get two or three more running well we'll look good for the end of the season," he predicted.

Running in the Mountain Valley Conference is no leisurely jog through the woods. Applin said the league is very competitive. Livermore Falls fields a girls team that usually competes well at the state level, Applin said, and Mt. Valley and Jay boys are also tough to beat.

Applin says he sees running as a lifetime sport and encourages anyone interested in it to turn out and get in shape.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Another school year is well under way and is as busy as ever. September dates and activities to make note of begin with Tuesday, the 24th. Our Open House will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. that day. Be sure to attend to meet your children's teachers, and to find out what programs, procedures and expectations are in order.

Michelle Blake and Jean Richards are getting the volunteer program rolling already. The interest/information papers have gone home. These should be filled out and returned by any person interested in volunteering in any way at our two schools. These ladies are also preparing for our first major fund raiser of the year. Sept. 16 is the kick-off date. Money earned from this project will be going towards field trips for our children. School sponsored field trips have been eliminated due to budget cuts.

Routine items overlap into all classrooms, as each new year begins. Bus rules are reviewed, playground rules are discussed, with safety the main emphasis. Fire drill procedures are practiced. Heads are checked for signs of lice. Students and teachers spend time getting to know one another and the way this year's classrooms will operate.

A new feature at the Legion Memorial School is an answering machine. Mrs. Pierce, our secretary, is based at the Agnes Gray School and we are encouraging all calls to be directed there for prompt attention. The number of the Agnes Gray School is 674-2332.

The kindergarten classes of Mrs. Howes began the year by coming in a few at a time. This was their orientation period. These little ones are learning to work quietly and raise their hands to ask questions. They are learning to make a circle and form a line. They are learning about bus and safety rules from scratch! This is not a review for them.

Mrs. Loper's first-graders are making a booklet about themselves called "Bear Facts." Their authors of month are Jan and Stan Berenstien with their bear adventures. Friday the 18th found the first grades celebrating their bear projects with the annual Teddy Bear Picnic. In math the children are exploring with their math materials. In language arts they are reviewing colors and color words. Mrs. Loper has instigated a Student of the Day, and this week honors went to Jeremy Wilcox, Ashlee Sessions, Catherine Richards, Erik Poland and Ian Isley.

Mrs. Perham will be starting her special person of the week very soon, but these past two weeks some children have felt very special anyway. The two class mascots, Clifford, the big red dog and Curious George, the monkey, have been going home with students. The children also take home Clifford and Curious George books for shared reading with their parents. In reading, Mrs. Perham is working with the new program, Open Court. Sounds that are being worked on are shown with a picture to stress that sound. The picture of a broken bat makes the boys and girls say "aw" and the picture of a hammer hitting a thumb makes us all think "ow," or "ou." Reading words this week are aw, ow and ou words.

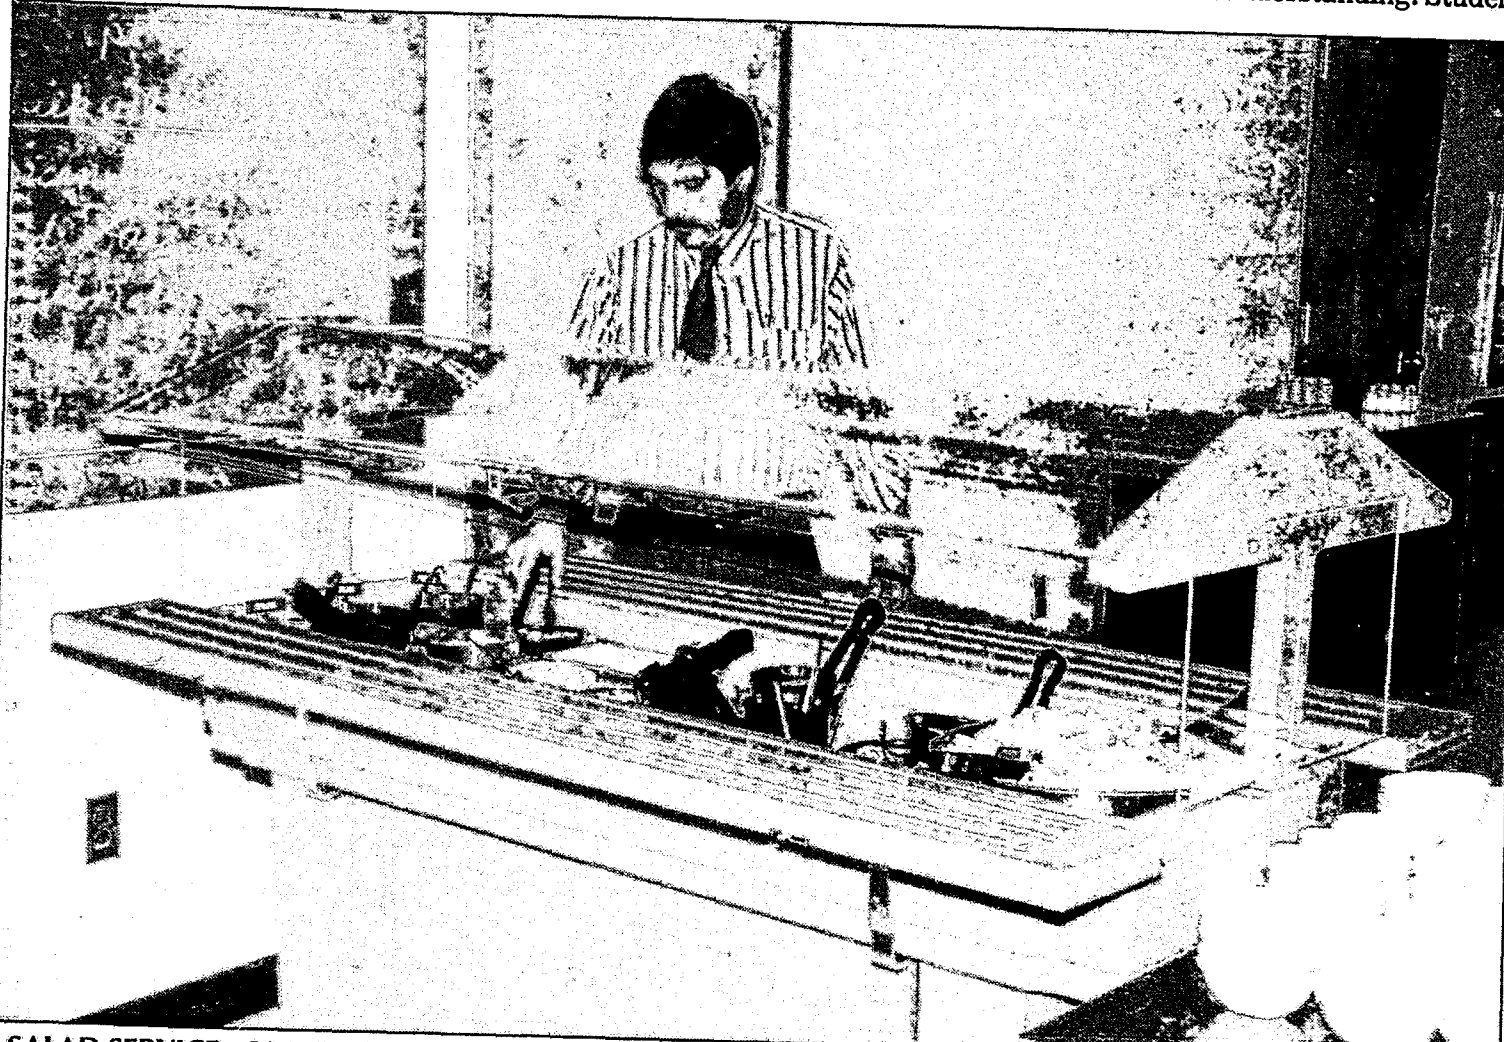

Mr. Burke's third-graders are beginning the year with the famous castle and dragon theme. They are reading fairy tales, integrating phonic skills and introducing book report form. In science they are relating their study of rocks and minerals to the castles. We are all looking forward to the final activity of a castle show. Spelling words this week are all numbers and colors. In math this class is exploring numeration using objects called unitix cubes, number squares and chips.

Mr. Litchfield's fourth-graders are practicing with lessons on following directions and working on listening skills. The children are working on estimation activities in math. They have begun their unit on electricity in science and their unit on Maine history in social studies.

My fifth-graders and I are off to a great start with our monarch butterfly project. We have already tagged several butterflies, both raised and wild and we are recording all the necessary information on our data sheets. One copy of our data will be sent to Dr. Fred Urquhart at the University of Toronto to help in his work with the migration studies of the monarch. We have started our journals, which will be a written record of events that take place in the world and here in West Paris during the fifth-grade year. We are welcoming two new students, Jessica Beane and Theresa Rainey, who have moved here from Norway.

Mr. Koch and the sixth-graders are welcoming one new student this year, Andrea Johnson, also from Norway. Many new curricula are being introduced and implemented this year for every class. It is exciting to have new and updated materials and approaches. Mr. Koch and the sixth-graders may win the prize for having the most changes. They start off the day, as do grades 2-5, with DOL. This is called Daily Oral Language and is an English or language arts lesson in grammar. Two sentences are on the board each day. The students have to find the errors, write to express orally the reasons for the corrections. The sixth-graders have begun a new reading series called "I Touch the Sun" published by the Health company.

All classes are using the new math program, which really began at the end of last year, called "Math in Stride." This program features hands-on projects to learn math. Our science program has been updated and three major units are to be addressed at each grade level. There will be one unit each on physical science, life science and earth science. A health unit will be a fourth area to be covered also. All classes are working with this new science approach. In addition the sixth grade has a new social studies book and curriculum called "People and Cultures." There will be lots of work and lots of learning going on in all classes.

SALAD SERVICE—SAD #44's new food service director Geoffrey Stiphen gives Telstar High School's new salad bar a final check before lunch time. Stiphen's department introduced the salad bar last week. It offers a choice of several traditional lettuce toppings. Stiphen said he thinks because students eating habits seem to be leaning toward more healthful foods that the salad bar will be a successful addition to the program.

Nat'l Forest gets right of way along Baldface Trail corridor

On Friday night, Sept. 13, a group of over 30 people gathered at the AMC's Cold River Camp in North Chatham, N.H. to celebrate the signing of the deeds giving a 20-foot-wide trail right-of-way to the U.S. Forest Service, White Mountain National Forest.

This deed gives the Forest Service ownership of a travel corridor across private land in North Chatham, N.H., which will now serve as the Baldface Trail corridor.

This trail, which leaves the west side of Route 113 approximately 500 feet south of the old trailhead location, is the primary access route to North and South Baldface Mountains on the Evans Notch Ranger District.

The right-of-way was purchased by the Chatham Trails Association from Henry and Dorothy Wardwell of North Chatham, N.H. who then donated the right-of-way to the U.S. Forest Service to be incorporated as part of the White Mountain National Forest.

Trail construction work within the right-of-way has been completed and was done by the Appalachian Mountain Club utilizing both volunteers and regular trail crew members. In addition, the Chatham Trails Association helped to relocate and construct the Slippery Brook Trail off the Wardwell's property and onto National Forest land. This puts the majority of these two trails entirely on public land.

In addition to the new trail corridor, a 20-car parking lot is being constructed by the Forest Service on the east side of Route 113 just south of the new Baldface Circle Trailhead. The parking lot is on land owned by the Appalachian Mountain Club's Cold River Camp, which is also donating the land to the U.S. Forest Service for construction and maintenance of the facility. The new parking area is expected to be ready for use around the first of October.

Representatives of Sunday River Ski Resort and the Atlantic Center for the Environment met last week in an attempt to hammer out the wording of a statement on the center's claim that the skiway is a major polluter of the Androscoggin River.

The skiway has demanded a retraction of the charge, which it claims is totally false and without factual support.

The charge was made in an inventory report on the local section of the river. The report, published in April, was sponsored in part by the Friends of the Androscoggin and the Mahosuc Land Trust.

Elliot Gimble, director of river programs for the center, said the meeting between the center staff and representatives of Sunday River went smoothly and he expects to release a statement shortly.

Statement expected soon on skiway pollution claim

Representatives of Sunday River Ski Resort and the Atlantic Center for the Environment met last week in an attempt to hammer out the wording of a statement on the center's claim that the skiway is a major polluter of the Androscoggin River.

The skiway has demanded a retraction of the charge, which it claims is totally false and without factual support.

The charge was made in an inventory report on the local section of the river. The report, published in April, was sponsored in part by the Friends of the Androscoggin and the Mahosuc Land Trust.

Elliot Gimble, director of river programs for the center, said the meeting between the center staff and representatives of Sunday River went smoothly and he expects to release a statement shortly.

CPS News

On Tuesday, we held our first school-wide assembly at the Bethel Inn Conference Center. Thanks to the generosity of the Bethel Inn, we will be having school-wide assemblies on the second Tuesday of every month for the remainder of the school year. These assemblies will feature special presentations and various programs throughout the year.

This assembly focused on informing the students about the upcoming student council elections which will be held in September, as well as information on our annual fundraising walk-a-thon. Our student council this year will take on a slightly new twist. Students will be elected from each classroom in grades three, four and five. In addition, these elected representatives will act as a liaison to another younger class in the building.

For example, a fifth-grade student council representative may also serve as a representative for a first-grade class. In this way, all of the classrooms in the building will have a vehicle to find out what's going on with the council and to make suggestions or recommendations through representatives that will speak for their class.

Mrs. Ellen Greeke, our second-grade teacher, will be the coordinator of this year's student council. Already, plans are underway for special activities to be sponsored by the student council throughout the year.

Our annual walk-a-thon will be taking place during physical education class during the week of Sept. 24. Students will be receiving material on the walk-a-thon in the coming days, and should begin finding sponsors to help support them in their efforts for this year's walk-a-thon. Like last year, all funds that are raised through the special activities that will be held in the building. Last year's activities ranged all the way from the observance of the anniversary of the birthday of the ice cream cone to special presentations by Mr. Wizard.

It is our hope that each student in the building will be allowed to participate in the walk-a-thon. Prizes earned for the walk-a-thon will be awarded at our October assembly.

Another highlight of Wednesday's assembly was hearing the fifth-grade students take some time to discuss with other students in the building their goals in terms of setting a good example as leaders at Crescent Park.

this year. Many of the fifth-graders volunteered to stand up in front of the audience and explain how the fifth-grade class could continue to set a good example as the year goes on. Younger students were visibly impressed with the comments made by the fifth-graders.

In closing, I would urge each of you to attend next week's very important PTA meeting. At that meeting, Mrs. Salway will present an overview of our volunteer program and I will update the PTA on the progress of new school plans. Best wishes for a great weekend.

A week in the life of HILLARY HARRISON

Hello, hello. How do you do? I'm great. School is definitely keeping me busy with homework, projects and tests. Last week I did a map of the crusades and soaked it in coffee and burnt small holes in it to make it look old. I did that project for social studies.

Also last week I had a sleep-over party with a couple of friends. That was fun.

Last week was also school pictures. I don't know if mine will come out good, because I think my eyes were closed. But, I always think that and they always come out fine. I hope they did this time.

Sciatica: Pain of the Back, Hip, and Legs

Sciatic pain occurs more frequently in men and involves pain of the legs and lower back. Sciatic pain can result from pressure on the sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body. Actually there is more than one sciatic nerve. These nerves branch out from the spinal cord to the buttocks, the sex organs, and the lower extremities. Any condition that affects the sciatic nerve that runs down each leg can cause pain all the way from the lower back to the toes.

Typically, sciatica is sensed as a burning pain that shoots down the hip along the back of the thigh. Coughing, sneezing, or trying to bend the back may worsen the pain. The pressure on the sciatic nerve is thought to occur when one of the discs of the back bone breaks and presses on one of the roots of the sciatic nerve. A narrowing of the opening in the vertebrae from arthritis of the spine is another cause of sciatic pain.

Treatment of sciatica consists of bed rest and limiting movement of the extremities. Heat from a heating pad or hot water bottle applied to the hip and legs may provide some relief of pain. Nonprescription pain-relievers such as aspirin, ibuprofen, and acetaminophen may be helpful. If the pain persists, treatment of underlying causes may be necessary. Surgery may be required to correct an abnormal spinal condition.

States compares poorly with many other industrialized nations in the health status of our population.

Health care costs put a tremendous strain on family budgets, eat up government spending and hobble American business.

Our legislation is designed to guarantee all Americans quality health care, control health care costs, and to assist small business in providing coverage to their employees.

This legislation builds on the existing public/private health care system which encourages employers to provide access to health care for their employees and families.

The bill will require all employers to provide private health insurance to their employees or contribute to a federal/state program called AmeriCare. This program will replace the existing Medicaid program for all services except long-term care, and will be administered by states under federal standards. All persons not eligible for employer-based health insurance will be eligible for coverage through AmeriCare.

Meaningful cost containment is central to health care reform. The bill provides for a comprehensive program to reduce unnecessary or ineffective care and creates federal and state agencies to negotiate rates and expenditures for health care services. The cost containment provisions are estimated to save nearly $80 billion over five years.

The legislation also takes into account the special problems and needs of small business. The bill includes reform of the small group insurance market, which is critical for small businesses that cannot afford insurance under the current market system, or whose employees are excluded for coverage because of pre-existing conditions. In addition to other provisions, to help ease adjustment to new requirements, the legislation provides a lengthy phase-in period and financial assistance to small businesses in the form of tax credits.

Clearly, enactment of health care reform must be a top priority of this Congress as we work to address the needs of American people. I look forward to hearing from families in Maine concerning my legislation as I press to move it forward.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gray of Millinocket visited at the Harrington home for a few days last week.

Jake Annis, son of Scott and Wendy Annis, broke both bones in his lower leg. He will be home for a couple more weeks before going to school.

On Aug. 22, Ruby Coolidge had a birthday supper for her daughter, Teresa Walker, at her home. There were 18 people to help celebrate.

On Sept. 7 and 8, Ruby got her roof shingled with a shingling party. She fed the people and they did the work on the roof.

A birthday party was held at the Cross's camp on Songo Pond for Jennifer Cross, granddaughter of Ruby Coolidge. Jennifer is one year old.

Peggy Coolidge and Ruth Bethel attended senior citizens on Sept. 11 at the Rumford Point Church. John Kitteridge was kind enough to take them.

George and Dolly Olson have been visited by a bear for three nights last week. Dolly believes it is the one that had been visiting her sister-in-law Kelly.

Dolly Olson and her mother, Rowena Dunham, visited Adaline Clough in West Bethel last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Blake will be home on leave next week before reporting to a new station.

Ryan Bernier has a new address now: AB Ryan Bernier, P.O. 4, Box 13611, Kessler AFB, Miss. 38534-5363. He will be there until the end of October.

Bob and Florence Hastings are great-grandparents again. Mr. and Mrs. Kip Krichko have a new daughter born last week. This is the doventh great-grandchild, not the one I reported on in June or July, sorry. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bancroft of Paris Hill are the grandparents.

Mary Alice Bancroft broke her arm a week ago and has a cast above the elbow now.

Leslie Noyes' brother, Charles Noyes, visited him last week along with Gale and Jane Rhodes.

Verlie Mason is still in Norway Hospital. No one seems to know what is wrong and specialists have been called in.

necessity.

If there is any good news in our dilemma, it is that there is no shortage of ideas on how to revamp the system. I've introduced legislation spelling out an agenda for reform and many others have made proposals. The difficulty comes as we try to pick our way through the minefield of competing interests and ideas to forge the consensus needed for meaningful reform.

To aid in this process, I brought together in Portland recently national and Maine experts from government, the health care professions, private industry and labor to discuss some of the thorniest health care issues.

Gail Wilensky, administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration, which oversees the Medicare and Medicaid programs, talked about the problems faced at the federal level and the need to control costs.

Joseph Califano, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in the Carter administration, addressed the complexities of balancing cost, quality and access in delivering health care.

Other speakers examined the health care needs of rural areas, planning care for older Americans, the role of business in providing health care coverage and public attitudes toward health care issues.

But the purpose of the gathering was not just to provide Maine participants with the views of the national experts. It also was designed to give the experts a chance to hear from those on the local scene who deal with the health care system daily, have firsthand knowledge of its problems and realistic suggestions on how to fix it.

This kind of dialogue will play an important role in moving the reform process forward and creating the kind of system to which I am committed—one that guarantees access to affordable, quality health care for all Americans.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight visited George Knight's families in Sanford, Maine on the return home from one of their visits to Fannie Baker.

A recent cookout was held at the Leslie Gammon family camp on McWain Pond, East Waterford to celebrate the birthdays of Charlie and Jeannette Knight's grandson and great-grandson which fall on Aug. 24. Mark Henderson the great-grandson was two years old and Bruce Campbell, the grandson, was 28. Also present besides the Knights and the honored guests were Marianne and Les Gammon, Dianne Campbell, Mark's mother, Darlene Henderson and his brother Christopher, and Bruce's wife Jennifer. A birthday cake was also served.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will meet Monday, Sept. 22 at 6:30 p.m. for their regular meeting. The senior citizen dinner for the Bethel group on Oct. 9 will be the topic of discussion. It was also reported that the VCR the auxiliary furnished the fire department was ruined, beyond repair, when the lightning hit the area so a decision will have to be made about a replacement.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary put on the Western Maine Firemen's Association's supper for the month of September. The menu consisted of ham with raisin-pineapple sauce, mashed potato, squash, cole slaw, fresh tomatoes, breads and apple crisp. After the supper there was some interest displayed in the working of the various fire trucks present and the members gathered in the fire house for the meeting and program. Around fifty people attended.

Charles and Jeannette Knight have visited her aunt Fanny Baker several times recently at the Huggins Hospital in Wolfboro, N.H., 03894. She is very depressed and would appreciate cards. She underwent an operation for cancer on her leg and then was expecting to be operated on for stomach cancer; but, the doctors have decided not to operate, so she will have to be fed by a tube as she cannot eat and keep anything down.

Tuesday, Gerry Shimamura and Lorraine Mills visited Vivian Barlow at her home in East Andover where she is recovering from a knee replacement operation. On Wednesday, Sandy Nash, Mary Ranks and Lori Drisgill also visited her.

In other news of the Charlie and Jeannette Knight family, the Knights visited Charlie's sister and others at Ledgeview Memorial Home in West Paris along with Chester Harrington, a childhood friend. Charlie was pleased that Chet knew him; Marianne took her mother Jeannette to Lewiston on the 23rd so Dr. Tchao could fit her for glasses after her second cataract operation, and Charlie, Jeannette and Charlotte Cole had supper at Helen Chase's camp and played cards on Wednesday evening.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Clair;
I know that you and the others are probably totally immersed in the latest phase of training, so I'll try to be brief, of course, "brief" according to Broadbent is anything but. You'll simply have to come to terms with that and...whoops...you'll simply GET to come to terms with that and deal with it. (There, that's more like it.)

Donald and I spent another five, or was it six days, on the road home, after our sojourn to the south. Despite the onset of the worst respiratory infection to hit me in decades, and despite a blowout on the highway somewhere in beautiful up-country Virginia, we managed to hie ourselves to our hills well in advance of the "turning of the leaves."

The turning is just sneaking up on us these past few days. And the hills for which we pined while we were taking the training with those of you who move about on a truly flat Florida, will soon be replete with their fall foliage. The foothills of the White Mountains are perched across the way from our walls of windows, so there are mountains to greet from just about any room in the house. And greet them we surely do...especially this past few weeks. We talk to them. We tell them that we missed them. We praise them for their splendor, their great greenery, their willingness to share.

Our lives are pretty much back in sync this week, despite the fact that staying away from home for almost a month can certainly do a number on one's grasp, not to mention one's grass. While we were retreating and transforming with you and the others in the sunbelt, we missed out on a church supper, a couple of hikes into the surrounding mountains, a visit from Bob and Camilla Everett, up from Virginia. We weren't here to offer condolences to Ruth Gilbert or Richard Walker, when their brother Donald died, or our congratulations to Jim and Mary Taylor when they got married in our little Union Church.

But finally, after razing the lawn to its manageable greenness, polishing off the second bottle of cough syrup in an attempt to put the rasping to rest, we're marching to the West Bethel metronome once again. In keeping with our policy of always having one more project than we have time for... Donald headed off for the town of Gray to create a wooden deck for my Aunt Gerrie. His brother-in-law Winsor and his brother Ray joined him from nearby Topsham and not-so-nearby Holbrook, Massachusetts. While the "boys" pumped nails into the pressure treated lumber, we "girls" got to hang out together in West Bethel and its surrounds—those "surrounds" just happening to include a multitude of shops full of antiques and other gifts, handcrafts, supplies, etc., etc. It was hard work keeping up, especially with my recovering lungs and hack-bruised ribs working at about sixty percent efficiency.

Somehow we muddled along, Ann and Nancy and coughing Constance. We traversed the Sunday River Road (that's the road to the skiway that's making Bethel and neighboring Newry famous) in search of shops and solitude. At the old covered bridge over the river, we met a lovely couple from England's Isle of Wight. They were "doing" New England and were using specially marked maps to make their way from one covered bridge to the next. In answering their query as to the reason for the cover... a wooden bridge erected in the last century to get from gravel road to gravel road needed protection from the harsh northeastern elements... I thought of you Floridians and chuckled to think of your extreme heat and your myriad waterways, that would never have needed covers over any of their bridges... umbrellas, maybe, but never covers! We chatted amiably (a-la-Sunday morning "stretch") about the possible connection between their Isle and the many Wight families in this area, and parted with a promise to look them up when we make our way across the larger pond.

Back at the Maine-ger we sat by the pool, drinking in the view and the sunshine (our weather has been balmy—80s during the day, nice cool 40s and 50s at night). We produced a New England boiled dinner for the weary carpenters one cool night and an end-of-season hot dog/hamburger cookout for the ensuing warmish one... (never again will I consider temperatures in the 80s to be sweltering after my sizzling sojourn to the oh-so-sunny-south at the summer's summit!)

With the completion of the deck the in-laws parted, just in time for Donald to head down the street to assist Reg

Westleigh with the erection of a roof. Linda, basement beautician and wife of Reg, divides her time between the creation of good looks for the townfolk and good food for the workers above. I, in the meantime, had been freed of my entertaining duties just in time to jump into the preparations for our annual Grange fair—it will be a fair accomplis as you read this—and then shift my attention and my energy to the last public church supper of the season on Sept. 21. (We also missed out on the August supper, the Old Home Sunday celebration at the Union Church, and the annual Quilt Show on the other side of the Androscoggin River at the East Bethel Church—such sacrifices in the name of increased awareness—which you of course can appreciate, oh "Buddy" of the first order.) Speaking of "first orders", I must conclude post haste, dear Clair, friend of the dyads, and baker extraordinaire of the "high holidays"... My kitchen awaits. The English muffin breads and sundry sweet breads are just figments at this point—to be ready for the fair, I really am "kneaded" at the pastry post. Please hand out meaningful hugs from the two of us to all those who miss us and we miss them. Tell them that we send our love via this newsprint and that we will return (never again in August!) as soon as we can.

I must check on the hills on my way to the ovens... there are new patches of red and yellow, where yesterday there was green! Autumn is tiptoeing in for a visit!

Love, C.B.

Sylvia Wight visited with Amy and Roger Hanscom recently and found them well. Roger is still conducting religious services on Sunday at their Rumford Community Home Center residence and enjoying it. Louise and I went to see them last Thursday and didn't see them—Amy was going to the hospital to get a check-up and Roger was nowhere to be found. Maybe he was getting his whirlpool bath.

The Sno-Mobile Club will meet at the town office Thursday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m.

Bill and Sylvia Wight spent a weekend recently in Greenville and attended the 100th anniversary of the Maine Forest Service. The first fire tower in the U.S. was rededicated at Lily Bay State Park.

David and Jan Wight of Gilford spent the past weekend with his parents, Bill and Sylvia Wight.

While Theresa Toft of Marrisville, R.I. was spending a few days with her aunt, (me) we took Karlene Bachelder with us to have lunch at Maurice's in South Paris and do some shopping. Karlene bought a weird looking fish named, Betta. Then the three of us went through that famous flower garden that an elderly man has made into a beautiful thing to see. On the white gate the sign says, "Welcome to my flower garden." It's too bad we don't know his name.

"Flowers preach to us if we would listen. Flowers are the sweetest things that God ever made and forgot to put a soul into."

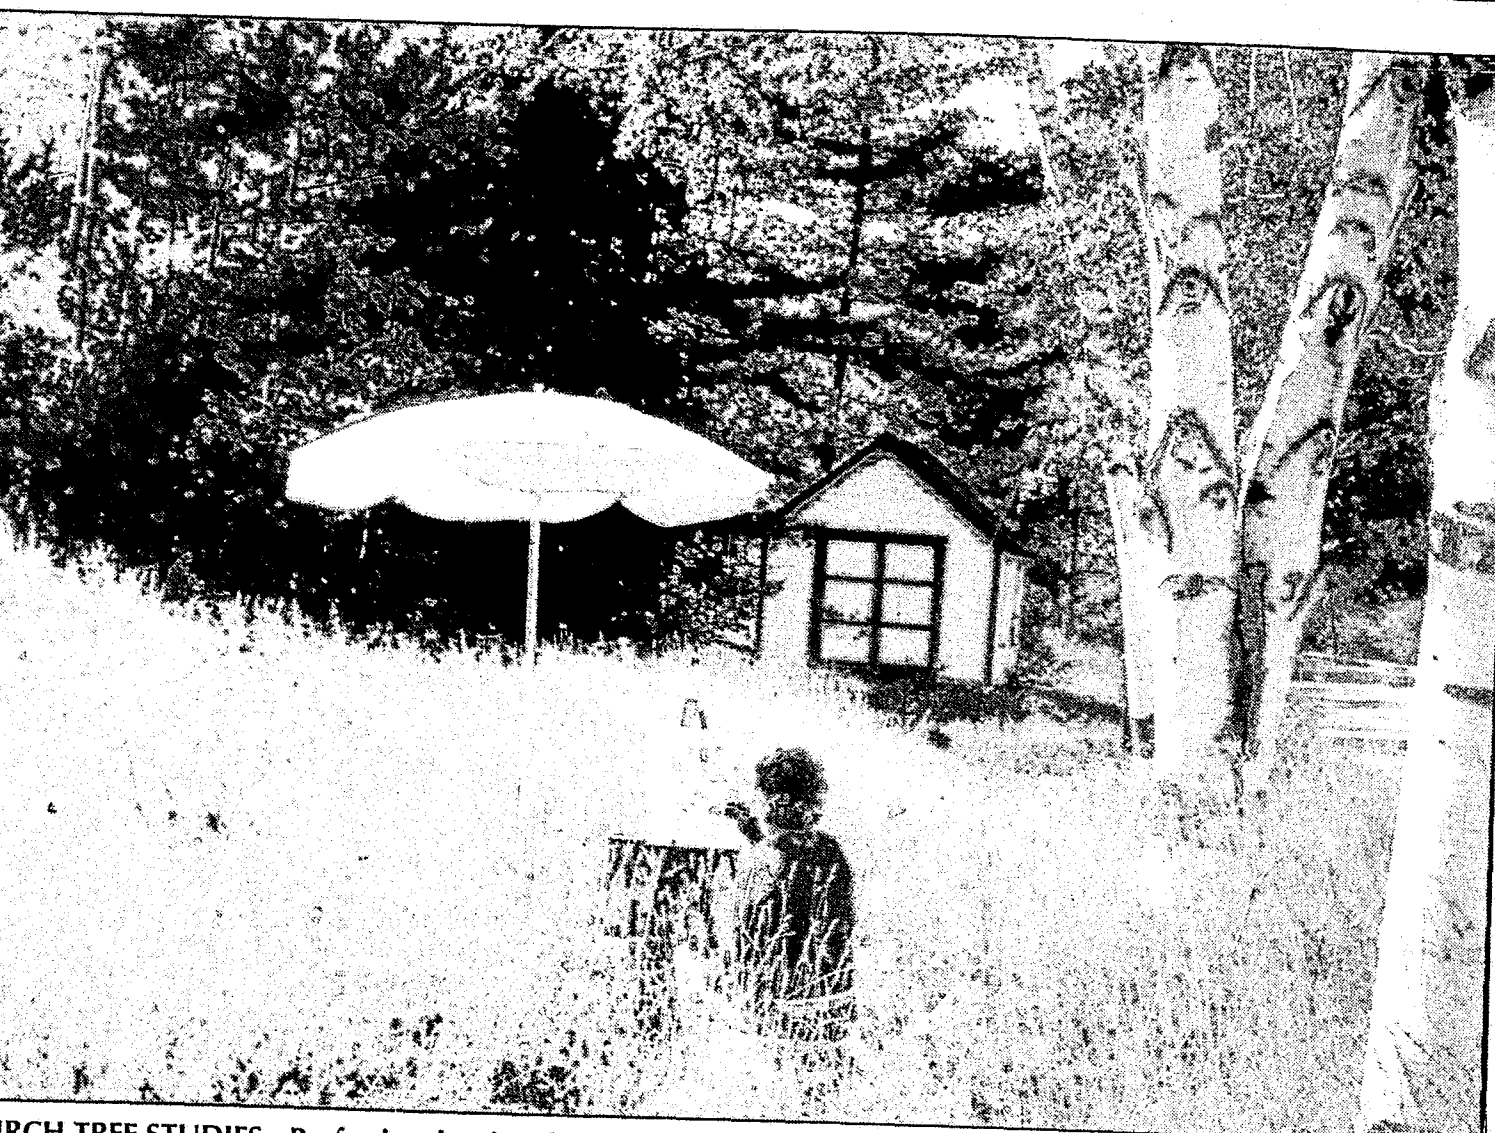

Newry

By JIM ANDERSON

Well, this week started off with a visit to the Anderson household by Bernie and Debbie Michaud. Debbie has never been up to my house while her hubby has been here for a deacon's meeting. After they left, mother and I went over to the Sunday River Fire House for a little get-together with the fire department and the ladies auxiliary. Deputy Brad Wight handed out the certificates of appreciation.

Monday saw the Newry Mother's Club meeting. Debbie Taylor has joined their ranks. Discussion and voted on was that parents of children going on Mother's Club sponsored trip must let the Mother's Club know who is going two weeks before the day of the trip. And parents are to supply spending monies for each of their own children.

BIRCH TREE STUDIES—Professional artist Christopher Huntington of Nova Scotia recently spent a quite afternoon capturing some West Bethel birch trees in just the right late summer light. Huntington is on an extended working vacation in the Bethel area and plans to paint several local sights. He is a former curator of the Colby College museum. (Photo by Vaughn Sawyer)

Also election of officers was held and the following are new officers: President, Eleanor Davis; Vice-President, Debbie Taylor; Secretary, Peggy Wight and Treasurer, June Swan. Mother is still sunshine lady.

In regard to the Mother's Club fundraiser, Bonney Learned won the doll and a friend of Betsey Clark's won the carving of a bird. Refreshments for the Oct. 14 meeting are to be brought by Gil Seeley, Karlene Bachelder and Debbie Taylor.

I am happy to tell you that Melvina Cummings will be moving back home to Newry. She will be living on the site of where her grandfather lived. Welcome home.

On Wednesday, mother went to a presentation sponsored by the West Parish Congregational Church at the Bethel library. The presentation was given by a Mrs. Leiper on English tapestries, embroidery and crewel work. Mrs. Leiper showed slides of England and homes and castles. She also showed the difference between English and American quilting.

Also during the week "Wee Willie" came back to his camp; as of last look his camp has gone from blah blue to bright red.

Bethel town isn't the only town to get a "face lift" in Cobleskill, N.Y. they are finally getting new roads and curbing.

Glad to see the past owner of Skidder's Deli is keeping his hands busy with his old trade of cement work.

On Thursday, mother and I bought a new microwave oven.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

This week I have spent much time out of doors getting gardens and other things ready for autumn. To a lot of people gardening just appears to be endless digging, hoeing, raking, weeding, watering.

Sometimes I'm asked to suggest things that can be planted and forgotten.

Of course, everyone has not the time it takes. But there are many dedicated older gardeners who would love to spend every waking moment among the plants, but they can no longer handle the physical effort that is demanded.

Old age can be the most unexpected of all things that can happen to a person.

My eighty-third birthday came in August looking me squarely in the face. Being older does bring its disadvantages, but also some genuine compensations. One of the great blessings is that I'm not in a hurry. An additional benefit of these later years is the privilege of having time to thoroughly enjoy and appreciate family. Family jokes and family gatherings are part of the cement which keep the family close. It's nice to share our "remember whens." I have a magazine that I read which brings me back to the good times. It's called Reminiscence.

The golden years bring leisure time and activities which were formerly crowded out by pressure of work.

The fall months are upon us for many sounds tell us it is autumn. There is a certain kind of theme song that goes with September and October in the rustle of leaves as they lose their grip and come tumbling down. The lawn becomes a crackle, as I walk over it. Children love to run in or burrow through leaves. I recall last year when my small nieces played in them, then raked them into piles.

Going to the woods there are many autumn sounds. The woodland creatures are out at work. I sit to listen and there may come an explosive whir of wings; a partridge takes off near me. I know the sound immediately but it starts a quick beat to my heart.

The blue jays hop from branch to branch keeping me in focus. They make clucking sounds but are ready to scream in alarm if there is an emergency.

There is also peace and tranquility, when one walks under a canopy of fall colors.

When grief or loneliness has overtaken me a walk brings strength for the ordeal. Somehow I know I must make my own path and face it alone.

I have sat in my boat on the Sanborn River and listened to the sound of leaves falling onto the water, then moving along to vanish from sight. A bit of sadness may creep over me with the thought of summer's end. But another creeps in; a dormant bud is there waiting to take the leaf's place, when spring comes again.

By Halloween the bright leaves will be gone. Gray-green moss will appear on bare limbs and tree trunks and wind will sweep the leaves into corners. We'll hear its whisper and be reminded of winter soon to return.

There have been many callers at the farm this week. It has been a busy week.

Milton and Eleanor were at "Camp Maplewood" on Sunday. The Vernon Innans were also at their camp.

On Thursday Rena Curtis and I were in Portland where I saw my eye doctor. We called to see brother Ernest Curtis in Poland on our way home.

Mr. and Mrs. Waino Waisanen of Rockland stopped to see me on Thursday. I was pleased to see them. He lived here in town when he was a small boy, so he was a pupil of mine in school.

High Street

West Paris

By VIVA WHITMAN

What a beautiful day this Sunday has been. Couldn't wait to write this in the morning as I have to head for the doctors bright and early. The past few days have been glorious ones and ones to enjoy all you can as we know what is in store for us later on.

Sorry to hear that some folks have had killing frost, but so far we have been spared. We are sheltered enough to not get the first ones unless they are real bad and these that we have had so far haven't been that bad.

Tomatoes are ripening fast and I put up 19 pints yesterday. Got more pickles to make as Charlotte didn't take all the cukes when she was here. My son wants some for a birthday gift anyway so that is what I make him to enjoy. What a better gift could one give?

This past week was one for grange meetings. We had one Monday evening at Franklin to install the officers and those of West Paris also. Tuesday evening was Pomona grange at West Summer, but I didn't go for that.

That was installation of officers also. Russell and Peggy went, but I had been taken sick during the day so stayed home.

Wednesday evening was Pomona grange at Greene and a three point meeting of three different Pomona granges with Oxford being one of them. Thursday evening was West Paris grange meeting and Peggy attended that. During the day on Thursday, our grange had a senior citizen dinner to put on. Peggy and Russell went to help, but I was still under the weather so stayed home and laid around trying to get better.

Peggy and Russell went to West Paris for the dance Saturday evening and they had a good crowd.

Peggy had guests today and they were her daughters, Myrna and husband Bernard White from Auburn and Loretta Merrill from West Bethel. They came for lunch and lots of good laughs by the sound. Myrna and Whitey called in here for a few minutes before going home. They will soon be leaving for Arizona to spend the winter once again.

On Wednesday, Mary visited Barbara Felmeth and daughter in North Norway. They are here only for a short while.

Marsha Baxter is spending the weekend with her mother in Skowhegan.

Jay Whittemore and friend Lisa called on Mary early Sunday morning. The dance was a great success at West Paris on Saturday evening and the next ones will be on Oct. 5 and 12.

West Paris Grange will be holding their flea market and food sale on Nov. 2 so keep it in mind if you want a table to sell things, just give Mary a call and she will have one for you at a reasonable rate. Her phone number is 674-2147. They always have a good sale and lots of good food for one to buy, so mark it down.

A break-in at the town office netted the burglar 70 cents. Unless he was a local it wouldn't cover the cost of transportation.

Lucas Tree Company has been laying a new telephone line on Backstreet as the former one has been a pain in the bell.

Your correspondent and her vehicle have been spending an unhappy amount of time at a medical building or hospital and garage getting inspected and repaired.

Eric Bernier and his mother Annie Atwood of Farmington were callers at Heritage Farm recently. Eric is home on leave after a tour of duty in Panama with the U.S. Army.

Ray Bernier spent several days at his home here and used some of his time getting a physical check-up and treatment. While at home he worked on improving his landscaping.

Monsanto Chemical Co. have sprayed nearby cut-overs in Upton and Grafton on Boise Cascade property for the purpose of killing hardwood trees and brush to let the conifers get rapid growth.

INNOVATIVE LEARNING—Gould Academy classes started last week. Above, Gould students Bryce Gasser, left, Amanda Wright, Samantha Languis, Chris Logan and Ryvta Koide measured the speed of sound on the second day of classes. Physics instructor Tom Ford said he prefers this type of hands-on outdoor classroom. In the background, assisting with the project, are Meredith Otten, Jay Walega and Mike Steinhocker. Left, Amanda and Nate Wright hold false grimaces while their faculty member father, John Wright, draws a 60-pound bow with a sharp arrow. Wright was demonstrating some of his hobbies at an all-school assembly last week. He was able to land a hookless dry fly on colleague Mac Davis' head at fifty feet. As for the accuracy of his arrow, the bell for class rang before he could get the shot off. (Photos by Kirk Siegel) square mile area from Bethel to Greenville.

Overflights

"There are major settlements in this area, not to mention recreational use of the entire area—(jet flights) 300 feet above the heads of people supposedly out vacationing in the wilderness would be totally devastating," said alliance board member Robert Kimmer of Temple, who proposed the resolution.

The second part of the National Guard's proposal calls for establishing a new M.O.A. in northern Maine, over an area which includes Baxter State Park, the Allagash wilderness waterway and the St. John's River. The flight floor in this second area would be 100 feet.

As many as 4,620 flights a year—or one every half hour during daylight hours—would overfly the areas, according to the proposal.

The military contends the lower elevations are necessary to provide training hours for reservists, primarily from Connecticut and Massachusetts. Canadian pilots would also use the areas.

The National Guard scheduled a meeting for yesterday, Tuesday, evening in Mexico to discuss residents' complaints about existing low-level flights in the area. (The meeting was too late to be covered in this week's Citizen, but will be reported on in our Sept. 25 issue.)

Lowe said the fact that the WMA's resolution was announced two weeks before the Mexico meeting was coincidental. "We're not trying to sandbag the National Guard," he said, noting that the WMA's board meets quarterly, and the Bethel meeting was only the second chance the board had to discuss the proposal.

Turnpike

Howard said referendum number one was a trick question. "The supporters would like you to think it's just an issue of widening the turnpike," he said, "but in fact it's a complex policy regarding transportation projects that would cause a loss of jobs in Maine and severely limit growth. It would create a new layer of transportation policy and more red tape and delays. It would make road and bridge improvements the lowest priority in the state."

Both speakers maintained that their plan would create jobs, either on the turnpike construction or throughout Maine if the money was spent on other projects.

After opening remarks by the opposing sides, the scattering of local people in attendance commented and asked questions.

Bill Kolbe of Albany said he thought DOT project needed taxpayer scrutiny and was opposed to the widening plan. "It's a self-defeating project," he said.

"After 30 miles its still going to bottle neck—until you pave another 30 miles. You could pave the whole state of Maine and only get more traffic."

Truckdriver Dot Murphy of Bethel agreed. "I'm categorically against this," she said. "You're still going to have the same bottleneck at Gray—onto a highway that gets you nowhere. It has taken me longer to get from Gray to Bethel than it has to get from Gray to Boston. When are these people who will get these jobs coming from. It the same thing with the sewer project in town (Bethel). It was going to create jobs, but the contractors from Vermont brought their own people with them and it created no jobs. Out-of-state contractors support this. I'd like to see money spread around the state."

But Joan Putnam of Bethel, who works in Sunday River Ski Resort's Welcome Center, said she could see merit in the proposal. "As someone who sees 100 or more people coming in from out-of-state on Friday night—be assured that the turnpike is congested for more than 17 hours a week. People headed home tell me they're relieved when they get to where the road is wider."

Tom Harrington of Bethel may have summed up most people's feeling on the confusing issue. "This whole referendum is a joke. Nobody can understand it. Nobody's going to come out to vote on it because they're scared to death that they don't know what they're voting on. I think when there are large sums of money involved in a project like this that the politics get very nasty. Excluding the press, there's only eight people here, and I think that speaks to how much people really care about this issue. I'm scared to death to drive on the turnpike on any Friday afternoon. It's bumper to bumper with traffic flowing 70-80 miles an hour. If people want to come here it's nice to see them get here alive."

HAVE A SAFE AND HAPPY WINTER!!

Made-in-Maine furniture to be displayed at Gould

Seven Maine furniture builders will have their works in the James B. Owen Art Gallery at Gould Academy in Bethel, Maine in a show running from Sept. 27 to Oct. 15.

The common denominator of the creators of the works on display is that they are handmade. Often the craftsmen and women work hand in hand with their customers, designing the pieces to meet their needs and tastes, at a cost comparable to factory-made furniture.

The furniture makers in exhibition are: Christian Becksvort, New Gloucester; Bretton Flannery, Freeport; Bill Huston, Poland Spring; David and Susan Margonelli, North Edgecomb; Tony Giachetti, Bethel Edgecomb; Sam Timberlake, Bethel and Robert Newton, Yarmouth.

For more information, please contact Owen Gallery director, Jan Baker, at (207) 824-2161.

SMH Auxiliary to hold fund raiser next week

Sept. 26 will be the date for the Stephens Memorial Hospital Auxiliary's annual fund raiser. The fashion show will feature women's, men's and children's clothing with area residents doing the modeling.

Goldstreet Restaurant, Main St., South Paris, will host the show at 7:30 p.m. There will be refreshments at intermission time.

The participating stores are: Block Store, Casual Connection, C&S Sports, Chodosh, Jack and Jill Shoppe, Julia's Ladies Apparel, L.F. Pike and Son Margo's Fashions and SMH Thrift Shop.

Tickets can be obtained from auxiliary members, the Hospital Coffee Shop and at the door. Space is limited, so buy your ticket early.

NOVA hearing set

A public hearing will be held by New England Partnership, Inc. as part of their study on vocational education for the NOVA Cooperative School Board. The study, which has been conducted over a seven-month period, included interviewing and surveying students, teachers, Task Force members, community members, board members, vocational staff, administrators and town officials. Visitation was made to the classrooms and a careful analysis of current facilities has been conducted.

The purpose of the hearing is for New England Partnership, Inc. to solicit comments and suggestions from the general public from SAD #21, SAD #43, SAD #44 and Peru about vocational education to be considered in the final report to the NOVA Cooperative Board.

The report covers: enrollment and demographic information; current programs and costs; methods of delivering vocational education; role of craft/advisory committees; adult and community education; facilities and space issues; new programs; images and perceptions of NOVA and student survey and concerns.

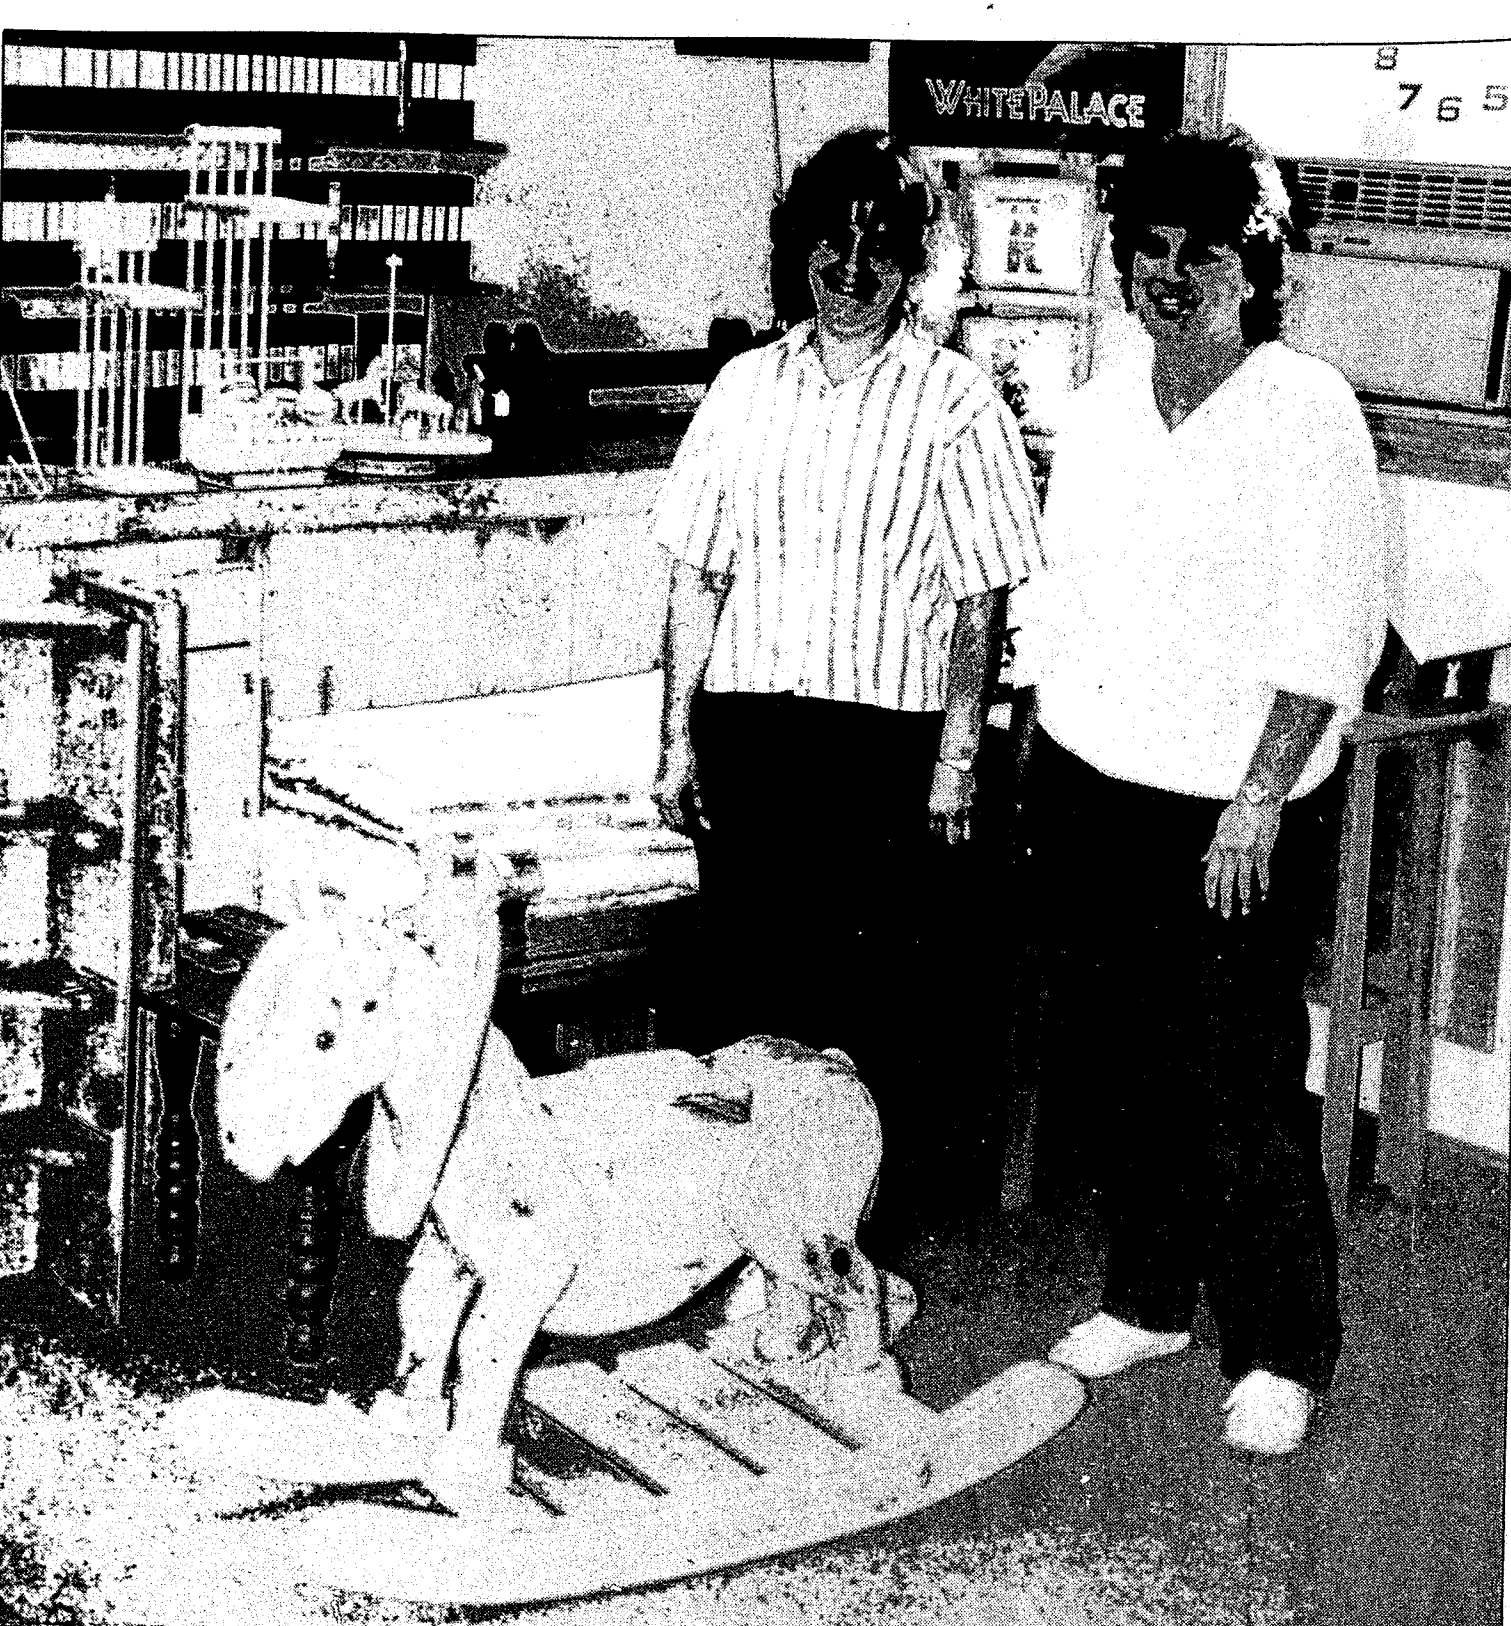

The public meeting will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. at the Mountain Valley Middle School. All citizens in the Northern Oxford County area served by Vocational Region 9 are encouraged to attend.

CROSS COUNTRY QUILTERS

Cross Country Quilters opened their new season Tuesday, Sept. 10 at the Bethel Library. Interested quilters may join the group at the library on the first and third Tuesdays from 9-11 a.m. New quilters may contact Ginny Keniston.

Chapter officers are: Virginia Keniston and Millie Jackson, co-chairmen; Barbara Honkala, secretary and Ruth Feeney, treasurer. Yearly dues include membership in the state organization, the Pine Tree Quilters Guild, which has 1,300 members. The guild meets three times a year at Togus. The Sept. 21 meeting at Togus begins at 9:30 a.m.

Community service projects for 1991-92 include a raffle quilt for the library, baby quilts for AIDS babies, other projects are Christmas, block, challenge, group trip and meeting at the nursing home to name a few. Persons with a wide range of abilities are encouraged to attend. There will be members to help beginners and advanced quilters.

HOBBY HORSE LOOKING FOR HOME—The Tri-Town Rescue Auxiliary is offering a chance for someone to give Benson pose with the hobby horse, which is on display at the video store. Tickets are available at the store, Tom's Custom Meats, West Paris General Store and from members.

LOCKE MILLS UNION CHURCH TO DISCUSS PARSONAGE

An all-church meeting for the purpose of discussing the future of the Locke Mills Union Church parsonage will be held at the Locke Mills Church, Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. All interested persons are cordially invited to attend and have input in the discussion.

SWOAM MEETS SATURDAY

The Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine will meet Saturday, Sept. 21 at 9 a.m. at the Walter Lang farm in Oxford.

The topic of the meeting will be survey and boundary line maintenance. Panelists will include a forester, surveyor and landowner.

To reach the Lang farm, follow the signs from the junction of routes 26 and 121 in Oxford, from the junction of Route 119 and East Oxford Road in South Paris.

Rotary Club notes

The Tuesday, Sept. 10, program was the monthly club assembly. President David Murphy presided.

Sergeant-at-arms Dewaine Craig introduced guest Ira Ptcher, L.A. Club; Bill Lowther, summer regular; David Whittier, Perry Palmer and Matt Guernsey from Oxford Hills; Norm Richard, Norwood, Conn.; Debra Dubrelle and Louis from Gorham, N.H.; Jay Reiss from Massachusetts; and Kay Chadbourne, Bethel.

Jim Monahan gave Rotary information and challenged Rotarians to plan programs recognizing the needs of others. Also to look beyond ourselves in planning new endeavors. Committee chairpeople give reports at the club assembly.

Vocational service chairman Dick Fain announced that the new Rotary mug will be available soon.

Community service chairman Nancy Harrison reported that the annual fall pancake breakfast will be held on Sunday, Nov. 24, at Gould Academy. The Rotary Student Exchange Program is part of International Service's program. Chairwoman Melinda Remington indicated that it's an opportunity for a high school student between the ages of 15½ and 18½ to go aboard for more information on this.

President David Murphy announced that Rotary will be having another outdoor-wear sale on Saturday, Sept. 28, at the SAD #44 Bus Garage.

David Preble reminded Rotarians about the upcoming citrus sale. Robin Zinchuk volunteered to help coordinate the sale this year.

Patient appreciation day at Bethel Chiropractic

To help celebrate Spinal Health Month, on Thursday Oct. 3 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Bethel Chiropractic will conduct a Patient Appreciation Day to thank their current patients and introduce new patients to the natural benefits of chiropractic health care.

On this day, they will provide chiropractic services in exchange for a $10 donation to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Bethel Chiropractic is a complete facility providing the community with the benefits of chiropractic care. Patient Appreciation Day is intended to help interested individuals to experience the many advantages of chiropractic care for a nominal donation to a worthy organization devoted to health care research.

Millions of people across the country are experiencing the benefits of chiropractic care in treating such common ailments as arthritis, low back pain, headaches and stress. Individuals who are interested in taking advantage of this special opportunity are encouraged to call Bethel Chiropractic for an appointment at 824-3889 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

News from the Bethel Area

Health Center

As of Thursday, Sept. 12, the Bethel Area Health Center will be resuming physical therapy services by contract with Stephens Memorial Hospital. The services available will be the full range of physical therapy care for the orthopedic, neurological and med-surg patient along with the use of a universal weight machine, cuff weights, dumbbells, stationary bike, Nordic track machine, hot packs, ultrasound and electrical stimulation.

Physical therapy will be available by appointment Monday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to noon. As the volume of patients warrants, hours will be extended to cover a full day. To make an appointment please call the Bethel Area Health Center at 824-2193.

A women's health seminar titled, "Natural and Surgical Menopause," will be presented at the Health Center on Sept. 25 starting at 7 p.m. The presenters will be: Sue Eastler, RNC, NP, who is a women's health care professional who has worked with Dr. Yates of Farmington and Tri-County Family Services for many years.

Ms. Eastler will discuss the general physiological changes and issues of menopause. Jan Whitworth, Bethel Area Health Center's P.A. who has worked at the Health Center for nine years will be discussing the pros and cons of estrogen replacement therapy. Finally, the newest member of the Health Center staff, Ellen Nyhus, who is a licensed social worker and has worked many years in private practice will present the many personal and emotional issues that confront women during menopause.

The cost of the seminar is $45 and pre-registration is through the SAD #44 Adult Education office. Please call that office at 824-2780 for more information.

Just a reminder. The exercise program hours have changed. We are open many more hours and are still in the process of offering the community the times you have requested. Our resident exercise physiologist, Joel Hinshaw, now has office hours all day on Tuesdays and would be happy to hear from you. Also, the adult education courses begin this week so don't forget to register.

Dramatist/singer Ladjamaya to open Gould arts series

Dramatist/singer Ladjamaya will perform "The Black Experience—A Cry for World Peace" at Gould Academy in Bethel, Thursday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in Bingham Auditorium.

According to Mahosuc Arts Council staff, who have booked the performance the first in the 1991-92 Gould Performing Arts Series, Ladjamaya has created a unique and powerful dramatic experience through a collage of poetry, prose, drama and song. Her performance depicts the plight of the African American experience and the urgent need for peace and unity in the world today.

Her highly acclaimed one-woman performance has received enthusiastic responses from audiences of all ages and cultures. "It has had excellent reviews throughout the United States, Canada, Trinidad and Tobago at schools, universities and organizations and community sponsored programs," said Vicki Rackliffe, council director.

When asked her motivation for this presentation, Ladjamaya said, "I want to use my talents as an instrument of peace. I want to reach a little closer to the souls of humanity—fostering love, understanding and brotherhood." Originally from Michigan and presently residing in Maine, Ladjamaya, a graduate of Western Michigan University, is a teacher, actress, director and singer with a number of regional theater plays to her credit, including "A Raisin in the Sun," "To Be Young, Gifted and Black," "A Soldier's Play," and "Purlie Victorious."

The Gould Academy Performing Arts Series is paid for by Gould Academy and organized by the Mahosuc Arts Council. For more information call council directors Marguerite Graham or Vicki Rackliffe at 824-3575.

"Some participants are just tossing around a few ideas for a business to provide or supplement their income. Others are clear about the direction they want to go with a business, but need some business expertise to help them do so, for example, in writing a business plan. And others are seeking ways to strengthen or expand an existing business. In any case, the clinics provide an opportunity for the entrepreneur to discuss his or her particular concerns or ideas with our business specialists, who bring a wide variety of business expertise and background to the discussions, and, of course, all discussions are held in the strictest confidence."

The University of Maine Cooperative Extension offers its programs to all eligible people regardless of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age or handicap.

Selectmen's meeting

The selectmen, however, currently have no authority to take existing use into consideration when calculating the S.D.C. fee.

And they recently turned down a similar request by Mike and Barbara Brown, who were faced with an $1,800 fee for adding an in-law apartment to their home.

At this year's Bethel Town Meeting, voters rejected, 30-23, a proposed revision of the sewer regulations that would have allowed the selectmen, in effect, to reduce expanded-use fees by taking existing use into consideration.

The proposed revision would have made the sewer regulations less inflexible and less of a financial burden on homeowners and businesses. But it was rejected by voters, not on its merits, but because they wanted—in the words of one opponent—"to send a message to town officials" about regulations in general. In his letter to the selectmen, Hansen wrote: "Unfortunately I was out of town during town meeting and wasn't able to argue in favor of amending the sewer regulations to allow change of use situations such as ours. If I had known the result I would have cancelled my trip."

At their meeting Monday night the selectmen expressed sympathy for Hansen's situation, but said that under the current regulations there was no way they could reduce the fee.

"I think we're completely handcuffed by the ordinance," said John Thurston, "but I feel responsible to try and do something about this."

The selectmen discussed calling a special town meeting and attempting to pass an amendment similar to the one rejected at the annual town meeting. But they acknowledged that few people would probably show up, and that those who did would likely be opposed.

"The voters of this town don't seem amenable to giving the powers that be more leeway," said Henley. "I'd encourage the board not to rush into an ordinance change."

If any changes were to be proposed, the selectmen agreed, they should be small and specific.

Board chairman Arian Jodrey said: "If you try to change the entire thing, people go (raising his hands over his head) 'woo! woo! woo!'"

The board then instructed Henley to look into the possibility of spreading the fee payments out over a five year period—a situation Hansen said he "could live with."

He told The Citizen later, however, that he was reluctant to enter into a long-term obligation based on the current fee structure and would continue to look into his other legal options.

In other matters Monday, the board signed off on a sidewalk modification for the access road to the Bethel Park Apartment Project.

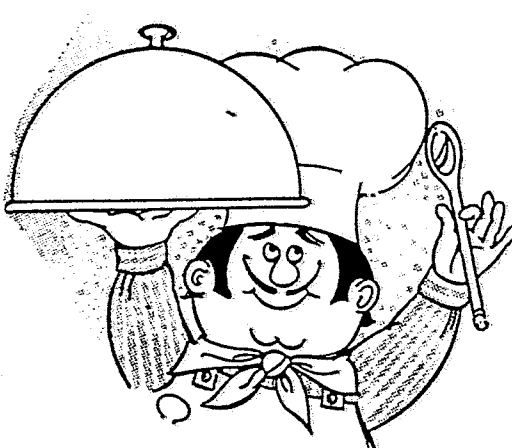

The modification to three feet in some sections, but does not move it to the opposite side of the road—as was originally proposed by the developers as a way of avoiding encroaching into the nearby floodplain.

The modified plans must now be submitted to the town planning board.

The selectmen on Monday also acknowledged letters of thanks to Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman and to the Bethel Emergency Ambulance Rescue Service. The letters, from a New York couple, commended the police and ambulance service for their handling of an accident last month at the Route 2 rest area.

The selectmen set Sept. 30 as the date for a special town meeting to approve the closing to winter maintenance of a section of Chase Hill Road.

NEWS FROM THE

Windy Valleys Snowmobile Club

The Windy Valleys Snowmobile Club will hold its first meeting of the 1991-92 season at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 19 at the Raymond Foster Building in Newry. Refreshments will be served while members are registering for the present snowmobiling year. Election of officers will be held and an agenda for the year will be planned.

We extend a welcome to anyone who wants to know what we do as a club, and to let you all know that grooming trails and riding with members, and with the handicapped skiers, holding an annual lawn sale to benefit the Oxford County Association for Retarded Children are just a few of the projects we participate in.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS TO MEET

The Oxford County Democratic Committee will meet on Tuesday, Sept. 17 at the Norway Savings Bank, High Street (Route 26), in Paris.

The meeting will convene at 7 p.m. Plans for a series of suppers and fund-raising events will be discussed, as will efforts to include the view of grassroots Democrats in the state platform to be submitted to the 1992 Maine State Democratic Convention in Bangor.

All interested Democrats are invited to attend.

BETHEL SENIOR CITIZENS

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met at the Rumford Point Church Sept. 11 with 63 in attendance.

Helen Saunders started the business meeting with everyone saluting the flag. The secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. The Sunshine Committee reported many cards were sent out.

Birthdays celebrated for September were: Cedric Russell, Leona Flint, Roger Twitchell, Dorothy Thomas, Mary Valentine, Avis Doonen and Emily Saunders. Virginia Walker thanked everyone for cards and prayers while Don was very sick.

Lindley Wieden spoke on the bus trip Oct. 11. There are two spaces left to be filled and all will be leaving from the health center parking lot at 8 a.m. He also spoke about a committee formed for a long-range program for Bethel. Twelve from our group will meet with Lindley to help on this committee. Lindley Wieden also read several articles from the "Metropolitan Live Insurance" magazine and finished with a informative and humorous piece about zucchini.

Mystery packages were won by Celia Gorman, Muriel Faudi and Alfred Brown.

The next meeting will be in the Locke Mills town hall on Oct. 9. A delicious chicken pie dinner was served.

Program: Roland Glines entertained with music and playing the bones.

Mundt-Allen Post

The regular monthly meeting of Mundt-Allen Post and Unit was held Sept. 10 at the Legion Hall on Vernon Street. This was preceded by a dinner hosted by the Auxiliary.

Special guests for the Legion included Department Commander Richard Blouin, Bath; Second District Commander Warren Pierce, Mechanic Falls; Second District Vice Commander Maurice Canwell, Rumford; Department Americanism officer Ed Roach, Dixfield; and Boy Staters and parents.

Auxiliary guests included Second District President Ethel Lacourse, Norway; 1991 Girls State Governor, Catherine Bishop and mother Pat.

Hampden; Second District Sergeant-at-arms Ramona Lowe, Bethel; Oxford County Chaplain Susan Canwell, Rumford; and Past President Barb Roach, Rumford and Girl Staters and parents.

Other guests included Madeline Henley and husband, Dale and Laurie Bellman and Bill Kolbe and Dorothy Duddy.

Special thanks were extended to the Rotary for their contributions toward sending a delegate each year to both Girls and Boys State.

Terrific reports on their experiences were presented by all attending. Slides of Girls Nation (July 13-20) were shown by the Girls State Governor.

Following the program a brief Auxiliary meeting was held.

Plans finalized for the restart of Beano, Sept. 12.

Special thanks were extended to the hosts of the Post picnic, Arlene and Elmer Bean and Mona Lowe for food preparation.

Update given on "Say No to Drugs Program."

Announced that Bethel will host the Oxford County Council, Nov. 19.

Next meeting, potluck supper, Oct. 6, 6:30.

Voted to send donation toward Veterans Home and Togus Gift Shop programs.

Announcement of fall conference in Millinocket, Sept. 27-29 and regional conference in Nashua, N.H., Oct. 4-6.

TOTAL QUALITY SEMINAR

The introduction to Total Quality will be the topic of a seminar series sponsored by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education during the month of October.

John K. Shorb will be the presenter for the series, which is designed for business leaders, managers, and employees of companies interested in improving customer service, becoming more profitable and productive and making greater use of their employees' capabilities.

The class will be held on Oct. 8, 10 and 15 from 7-9 at Telstar Regional High School. The content will focus on the theme of Total Quality, the most prominent theme in American business today. Total Quality involves continuous improvement through the application of specific tools and strategies which integrate customer needs and data to improve the process and environment for productivity. The format will include presentation, active participation by attendees, and several videos demonstrating examples of Total Quality approaches.

John Shorb is a consultant based in Bethel, specializing in facilitating individual, group and organizational effectiveness. He has over 20 years of experience with major corporations most recently with Boise Cascade and has chaired the Maine Commerce and Industry Symposium on Total Quality for the past two years.

The fee for the seminar is $35, with a reduced rate of $20 for additional attendees from a business. To register call the Adult and Community Education office, 824-2780.

ADULT EDUCATION COURSES

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program has several courses and workshops beginning in early October, including a seminar on wills on Oct. 2, a short course in spinning starting Oct. 9, a seminar on polarity energy therapy on Oct. 2, and a parenting discussion group starting on Oct. 8.

Local attorney Dan Reich will present a seminar on wills and durable power of attorney for health care on Wednesday, Oct. 2, from 7-9 at Telstar.

High School. The session is designed to be helpful for those with questions about these invaluable planning tools.

Mary Isham's course in spinning will be held at Mainely Fibers on Main Street in Bethel on Wednesday mornings from 10-12 starting Oct. 9 for three weeks. A rental wheel and fiber are available from the instructor.

Polarity therapy will be discussed in an introductory evening on Wednesday, Oct. 2, from 7-9 at Telstar. Practitioner Emily Ecker will explain the integration of the natural healing traditions of East and West, including energy balancing, reflexology, and breathing techniques. Attendees should wear loose, comfortable clothes and bring a blanket.

Parenting school-age children will be the overall theme of a six week class with Lorrie Hoeh covering such topics as communication, behavior and effective discipline. The group will meet on Tuesdays starting Oct. 8 from 7-9 at Telstar.

To register for these or any other SAD #44 Adult and Community Education classes, call 824-2780.

FREE FOOD DISTRIBUTION

Community Concepts will once again organize the distribution of government surplus food in Western Maine.

Volunteer help will be needed on the dates and at the locations indicated below. If you can help, call Community Concepts in Auburn, 795-4065, South Paris, 743-7716 or Rumford, 384-3721.

TRUCK BATTLE		DODGE CLEARANCE		TOYOTA CLEARANCE
Ford F150 trucks have outlasted every other truck, each model year, for the past 10 years. But with less than a month left in the 1991 model year, Chevrolet trucks are within 1% of outlasting Ford trucks. So, as a serious counter measure, Ford has decided to reduce its 1991 price added a second $800 to $1000 rebate.		1990 COLT GL #20335 2 door hatchback, 4 cyl., EFI, automatic, a/c, cloth, ster- eo, fold down rear seat, 200 miles. INVITATION TO BID

The Town of Woodstock is currently accepting bids from qualified persons who would be interested in building an eave on our town garage. The eave would be approximately 60' long and 4' wide. Details are available at the town office. Bids will be accepted until 5 p.m. on October 7, 1991, and will be opened at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, October 8, 1991. Proof of appropriate insurance will be required. Please mark bids "Eave Bid". For further information, you may contact the town office at 665-2668 or by mail at P.O. Box 317, Bryant Pond, Maine 04219.

WINTER SAND STOCKPILE

The Town of Woodstock is currently accepting bids for their winter sand supply. We will be needing 2500 yards screened, salted and stockpiled on our lot. Bids should be marked "Winter Sand" and returned to the town office no later than 5 p.m. on Monday, October 7, 1991. For further information, you may contact the town office at 665-2668 or P.O. Box 317, Bryant Pond, Maine 04219. Bids will be opened on Tuesday, October 8, 1991.

TOWN OF NEWRY REQUEST FOR BIDS

JOB DESCRIPTION: Remove and dispose of existing roof covering from town owned building (formerly Bear River Grange Hall). Install new painted enamel steel roof (brown) covering with appropriate ridge cap, chimney flashing and drip edge. New steel to be equal or better than Grand Rib 3, 29 gauge by Fabral.

Also part of the job is the removal of the top portion of the rear chimney (Northeast side of building) to below the roof line. This chimney is to be capped for possible future use.

Bids will be opened at the Newry Town Office at 10:00 a.m. on October 8, 1991.

The Town of Newry reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Bidders must show proof of liability insurance.

SALESPEOPLE

Selling experience necessary, automotive experience is not.

- If you are an honest, hardworking, top notch salesperson
- If you have had it with shrinking paychecks and all the doom and gloom stuff.
- If you would enjoy having the flexibility offered by a 12 acre inventory—with 10 major brands.
- If you believe in friendly, straightforward, informative selling.

Give us a call.

Our small town dealership's sales have more than doubled over the past 3 years and quadrupled over the past 6 years.

We pay our salespeople a hefty salary plus bonus. Our average salesperson earns $28,000 and our top people earn about twice that amount.

Obituaries

THELMA HAZLING

Thelma Hazling, 82, of 100 Campus Avenue, Lewiston, formerly of South Paris and Bethel, died Monday morning at Central Maine Medical Center after a long illness.

Born in Auburn Aug. 22, 1909, she was the daughter of Edward C. and Helena Hurley Bean Sr. She was educated at Leavitt Institute and later graduated with honors from Coburn Classical School at Waterville. She was married to Harry Hazling who died April 1, 1951.

For many years she owned and operated a thrift store at Norway and in the Welchville area. After her retirement, she served at the Good Shepherd in Lewiston.

Survivors include one daughter, Joan H. Pariseau of South Paris; two sisters, Mrs. Elgin (Hope) Tibbets of Bethel and Mrs. Fred (Sadie) Tibbets of Standish; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by a sister, Ruth Wilson of Bethel.

At the request of the family there will be no visiting hours. In lieu of flowers, contributions to the Maine Heart Fund would be appreciated.

ROY S. SILVER

Roy S. Silver, 66, of Bryant Pond, died early Sunday morning, Sept. 16, 1991, at Stephens Memorial Hospital. He was born in Gorham, April 30, 1925, the son of John H. and Gertrude Grover Silver. He was educated in Gorham schools and was a 1943 graduate of Gorham Senior High School. He was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II, serving in the European Theater. He received the Purple Heart, Bronze Star and Combat Infantryman's Badge. He then attended Gorham State College and received his B.S. degree in 1950, his M.S. from the University of Hartford, Conn., in 1964. He also attended Central Connecticut State College and the University of Bridgeport. He taught industrial arts in Augusta, Hallowell and Winthrop schools from 1950 to 1956. From 1956 to 1983 he taught industrial arts in Westbrook, Conn., Old Saybrook, Conn., North Branford, Conn., where he also was a guidance counselor and assistant principal.

He married Sharon Felt Dec. 24, 1987. Following his retirement in 1983, his love for education led him to substitute teaching, conducting adult education classes in woodworking and teaching special education at Telstar Regional High School, as well as being a bus driver. Mr. Silver also had worked as a rehab counselor at the Tugus. He had been active in law enforcement organizations, fire department and ambulance services wherever he lived. He was a member of several local and national education associations, a life member of the National Rifle Association and the Disabled American Veterans, a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Elks, the Rotary International, Lions Club, American Legion, Future Farmers of America, and Trinity Lodge, AF&AM, a Boy Scout leader, and the Franklin Grange. He was past deacon and member of Deep River Congregational Church.

He is survived by his wife of Bryant Pond; two daughters, Jennifer Felt of Bryant Pond and Joy A. Hall of Westbrook, Conn.; a son, Jeffrey Silver of Massachusetts; and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held today, at 10 a.m. at Andrews Funeral Home, South Woodstock, with interment in Maine Veterans Memorial Cemetery, Augusta. In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory may be made to either Tri-Town Rescue, P.O. Box 275, West Paris, Me., 04289, or American Cancer Society, Maine Division Inc., 52 Federal St., Brunswick, Me., 04011.

Happy Birthday
Whenever I think of you, I think of all the fun, the memories of holidays, the love and traditions that you held on to and carried out. I think also of yellow roses and rows of gladiolus, lilacs we threw in the water. I want you to know I don't just think of you on holidays or birthdays, but several times a year. All these memories, I hold very, very dear!

Love, Shelly

CARD OF THANKS

We the family of Amanda Dunham would like to thank the Richard Felt Band and everyone for their participation, donations, and contributions for the dance benefit for Amanda Dunham. The benefit was a great success raising $578 towards her medical bills.

Special thanks to the Richard Felt Band for sponsoring this dance, to Charlotte Cole for singing Amanda's favorite song, and to everyone that baked the delicious pies.

You've all helped to make this time easier for us.

We thank you for your kindness. The Dunham Family, Brian, Bethany, Jeremy, Amanda and Daniel

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank those who sent cards and attended services of Kenneth Morgan. A special thanks to Rev. Rust and Greenleaf Funeral Home for their help. We appreciate your kindness.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Agnes H. Haines would like to thank everyone for cards and other kindnesses extended to them that have meant so much to us in our recent bereavement.

Her brother, Rodney K. Howe
Her sons, John H. Haines & family
George K. Haines & family
Her daughter, Nancy H. Mercer & family

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mike Marston would like to thank everyone who offered support to us, in so many ways, since our loss. It would take the entire page to mention the names of those who have helped us. Whether it be flowers, cards, notes, donations of food or money, or positive thoughts and prayers, it is all deeply appreciated. We certainly know that Mike was loved. Thank-you.
